THIS COUNTRY uses eight million tons of paper pulp each year, 1974 times what it used twenty-five years ago. That means more than eight hundred billions of printed pages. Think how much wisdom COULD be printed on those pages. Think how much trash IS printed.

FLORINE ADAMS of Philadelphia, who bumped her head in a railroad car, arrived in New York not knowing who she was. She forgot Philadelphia, whence she came, did not know her own father. Everything else was right in her mind, except she didn't know who she was.

THERE IS not so much difference between Florine Adams and the rest of us. We arrive on this earth and don't know whence we came. We don't know who we really are, and we haven't any positive information as to where we are going. But we take all that for granted.

ENGLAND feels cheerful about the German settlement. Her pound sterling goes to the highest price of the year. Fancied things generally are cheerful. Germany is expected to say "Amen" to the Dawes plan and its details.

Stock brokers are enjoying an active August, and speculators at least, believe that the "reparations boom" is coming. International exchange, which represents international intelligence, also believes it.

A LEARNED alienist in the Loeb-Leopold case says both the young murderers "are devoid of soul," which is interesting negative information. Will some alienist tell the world what a soul is, where it resides, whether in one corner of the brain up near the pineal gland or in every one of the hundreds of millions of cells? Will the alienist also tell what works the body, thinks and feels, sees, takes messages brought in by the afferent nerve? Is the soul separate from mind, or consciousness? Does it do our thinking? are there good and bad souls, or is a bad soul one working through a malformed brain like Padrewski playing on a piano out of tune?

DR. STEINACH, whose specialty is making old men young, has a new method. No knife; instead, an apparatus that increases inside heat, stimulating the flow of blood to all the mysterious "ductless" glands. To put a central heater in an old man is like putting a furnace in an apartment house. Many probably will try it, although the wisest thing an old man can do is die and get a genuine young start here or somewhere else.

DR. HENRI DEAN, Belgian scientist, says imaginary illnesses are serious and REAL illnesses due to lack of equilibrium in our "two nervous systems."

Real or unreal, imaginary troubles are most horribly depressing and cause most acute suffering. Fortunately various faith cures help them?

MISS ANN LUTHER, 27 years old, film actress, sues Jack F. White, completely described by reporters as "a millionaire clubman." Miss Luther says Mr. White promised the usual things and broke the promises, as usual.

She wants $100,000, a price that seems low. It's all the usual thing, except that there are eleven women among the twelve jurymen.

HOW WILL those women decide? If you were a lady suing a gentleman for $100,000, wouldn't you rather have twelve soft, mushy, sentimental men on your jury? What can a pair of large, rolling eyes do with eleven jury ladies?

If the plaintiff is wise, she will dress simply, look demure, and cough modestly into her handkerchief.

MR. BUTLER, Coolidge manager, says, "Coolidge will

WOMAN'S BAIL FREES PONZI

Friend Furnishes $14,000 and "Wizard" Comes to Boston

Charles Ponzi, author of the most amazing get-rich-quick scheme ever foisted upon the public, is a free man once more.

In Superior Court today he furnished bail of $14,000 and was released.

He will be tried on ten Suffolk County indictments charging conspiracy to defraud, some time in October, and, in the meantime, will be a free agent.

Mrs. Benilda Malaguti of No. 104 Gardner street, West Roxbury, furnished the bail for the one-time "wizard" of finance. She is the wife of Charles Malaguti, president of the Columbia Counter Company, which has offices at No. 60 South street. She and her husband are among Ponzi's closest friends.

As soon as he was formally released, the get-rich-quick operator kissed his wife, waved his hand at the reporters, and left the courthouse.

"Nothing to say just now," he shouted back. It was probably the first time in his history that the volatile Mr. Ponzi overlooked a chance to be interviewed.

FEDERAL TERM ENDS.

Early today, Ponzi appeared at the courthouse in custody of Deputy Sheriff Charles Robbins of Plymouth County.

Robbins explained that the financier's term in Plymouth County jail on a federal sentence had expired and that he was to be turned over to the Massachusetts authorities to be tried on State indictments.

The deputy sheriff and his charge sat about outside the grand jury room, waiting for Assistant District Attorney Frank S. Deland to ap-

FIRPO DEPORTATION IS ASKED BY CHURCH

Washington, Aug. 6.—Deportation of Luis Angel Firpo, Argentinian prize fighter, was demanded today by the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Secretary Deets Pickett called attention to the deportation of Blanco Lourdes, who came to New York on the same ship with Firpo a few weeks ago and declared that "if it is right to admit him, it is right to admit her." Firpo's case is being investigated by the Immigration Bureau.

UNITED STATES EXPORTS TO CANADA OFF 9 P. C.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Exports from United States to Canada during the last fiscal year valued at $691,500,000 showed a decline of 9 per cent. from the previous year, an analysis by the Department of Commerce showed today.

The United States, during the same period, purchased $417,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, a 1 per cent. increase over last year, leaving a favorable trade balance of $134,000,000 for the year.

Worcester recorded 100 today, the hottest of the year. The heat caused one death, the victim being Mrs. Mary Cunningham, aged seventy-eight, who was found dead in bed.

At noon today the Boston temperature was 85, as compared to 84 yesterday. It is possible that tonight the temperature will fall. Thunder showers are likely.

RITUAL OF KLAN IS EXPOSED

Former Kleagle Describes Each Step 'Alien' Initiates Must Take

A KU KLUX KLAN initiation is described in faithful detail in today's instalment of "The Confessions of a New England Klansman." Today's article is the second in the series of ten. They will be run daily.

Written by an ex-Kleagle of the order, they comprise the intimate personal story of the evolution of a Klansman. They denude the Klan of its mystery. In view of the epidemic of Klan riots disgracing New England they are particularly timely.

By AN EX-KLEAGLE

ALIENS!

My article yesterday ended on that word, hurled at us shivery candidates by the kleagle in the klavern.

It is the first word that the candidate hears the chief murmer in this astounding tragi - comedy utter.

"Aliens," the kleagle said, "would-be citizens of the invisible empire, I desire you to repeat after me"—

Then we took the oath, as follows:

"I, John Jones, do most solemnly swear that I will at all times uphold the Constitution of the United States; that I will patronize and protect a klansman and a klansman's family, except such klansman be guilty of rape, arson or murder; I will will, if necessary, give my life in the performance of this duty."

Then there was a supplementary clause, in which we were taking the oath without mental reservation. This is designed to keep out Catholic spies.

That was the first degree. Then the klud, or chaplain, came into view. Like all the other klansmen, he was robed and hooded. We aliens knelt on our left knees with our left hands resting on the shoulders of the candidates in front of us.

In the flickering light of the fiery cross, the chaplain prayed. He prayed spontaneously. Usually there is a short, set form of prayer.

There was no abuse in the prayer. But every few words he mentioned Protestantism. He prayed for guidance and for an America redemmed by evangelicals. And that was the second degree.

TAKES THIRD DEGREE

Then the highest officer present, the kleagle, appointed assistants and ordered us to prepare for the third degree.

Shenandoah's Trip to New England Halted by Fog

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 6 (Universal) — Impending thunder showers and a dense blanket of fog caused officials at the naval air station here to postpone the scheduled trip today of the dirigible Shenandoah to New England for a test at the mooring mast of the converted supply ship Patoka in Narragansett Bay.

The trip will probably be made tomorrow.

SUITCASE CLEW TO MISSING BRIDE

Claremont, N. H., Aug. 6.—A brown leather suitcase may solve the mysterious disappearance of the one-hour bride of Harry Whitmore, forty-six years old, a farmer of North Charlestown.

The bride had $200 of her husband's money when she vanished, leaving her suitcase behind.

Whitmore's attorney has advised him not to open the bag until later, believing it will reveal more than the farmer ever knew of his bride.

CORRESPONDENCE ROMANCE.

Several months ago Whitmore obtained the address of Miss Marion Armstrong of Whitehall, N. Y., through an agency. A correspondence started and numerous telephone calls were exchanged.

Last Thursday night, a call from Lebanon, N. H., sent Whitmore scurrying to Claremont Junction to meet his bride-to-be. The license was in his pocket. But she was tired after her long journey, she told him. She asked to be taken to the Hotel Moody.

They were married Friday noon and immediately set out for the Whitmore farm. As they drove through Claremont it was decided that Whitmore should go to Hotel Moody and get his wife's suitcase, while Mrs. Whitmore went shopping for gifts for Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Whitmore, the parents of the bridegroom.

Whitmore turned over his wallet containing $200 or more to his wife and drove in his buggy to the hotel for the suitcase. When he returned to the appointed rendezvous his wife did not immediately appear. His

IS CALLED UNFAIR TO LABOR

Lieutenant-Governor Accused of Settling Strikes With "Scabs"

A resolution condemning Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller for his attitude toward organized labor, was almost unanimously adopted at the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Massachusetts State Branch, American Federation of Labor, at Convention Hall, St. Botolph street, today.

An amendment offered by Thomas Nolan of the Typographical Union, asking that the Lieutenant-Governor be given an opportunity to be heard before the resolution was adopted, was almost unanimously defeated.

The resolution stated that in 1918 there was a strike at the Back Bay plant of the Packard Automobile Company. Efforts were made by union men, according to the resolution, to see Mr. Fuller and effect a settlement, but they never gained an audience with him.

It was also stated that representatives of Mr. Fuller, at a hearing before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, proved that he had enough strikebreakers so that he was granted a certificate of normalcy. This gave the Lieutenant-Governor the right to advertise in the newspapers for help without stating there was labor trouble at the plant.

ACCUSED OF FALSEHOOD.

The resolution declared that Mr. Fuller also made a false statement in November, 1923, before the Federation of Churches at the American House, when he said that he had never had a complaint in his shop in 25 years.

Delegate Nolan said he thought it unfair to pass the resolution without giving Mr. Fuller an opportunity to state his case. He said it would mean that labor men could not consistently vote for Fuller. He then offered his amendment.

John F. Walsh of the Sign Writers' Union said his organization

FORMER KLEAGLE EXPOSES INITIATION RITUAL OF N. E. KLAN

'ALIENS' IN FEAR OF KNIGHTS

They took small glasses of water from the table and dipped their fingers. They touched each one of us on the left shoulder and the top of the head. As they did so, the kleagle said "I anoint these with this pure water in love and in humanity."

At the end of each degree the kleagle formally asked us, if we wished to withdraw; if we found our desire to enter weakening.

I often have wondered what would happen should some hardy alien take him at his word and attempt to leave.

"Stand," said the kleagle, at the end of the third degree. They lined us up, standing, three feet apart.

EYE OF SCRUTINY

Told off by the presiding officer, some twenty klansmen, hooded and robed, passed slowly along in front of us.

To one with a sense of humor, this is amazingly like a line-up of rogues at Police Headquarters.

But in the sonorous language of the Klan this ordeal is known as the Eye of Scrutiny.

Again they asked us if we wished to withdraw. Again, of course, we said the we did not. But I know one who did.

"I welcome you as citizens of the Invisible Empire," intoned the kleagle. He banged his gavel on the little table. The Night Hawk touched the electric button. The lights went up.

NIGHT HAWK A JANITOR

It was over. The klansmen took off their hoods that we, their brothers in the bond, might look upon their faces.

It was all very commonplace, after the thrill and the mystery which went before.

The night hawk turned out to be a janitor. The klav was a butter and egg merchant. The klid was a young minister without a pulpit. The kleagle was a stout, matter-of-fact man who engaged in the flour business in the day time. He was a man with a certain political following and a man of means.

For in the Invisible Empire, as in those that can be seen, money is no disadvantage to the man seeking preferment. Being a good spender never kept an ordinary klansman from becoming a mogul of the order.

PASS WORDS ISSUED

In the midst of the clatter of tongues, as neighbor recognized neighbor, the night hawk and the klav called for order, and for volunteers.

We here citizens were lined up again, this time more at ease. The volunteers passed among them, leaning over slightly and whispering the pass-word and the check word. Even in the safety of the klavern meeting the words must be whispered in the ear.

At one time, in the development of the Ku Klux Klan in Massachusetts, the pass-word was "America forever" and the check-word was "Bay State."

Pass-words and check-words are invented by the king kleagle of the state or realm. They are the same in all the klaverns in a single state. In Maine, when I once visited friends there, the pass-word was "America" and the check-word "Pine Tree."

GRIPS AND SIGNALS

As a rule, however, the pass and check words are changed every month, and oftener if there is any suspicion that they have gotten into the hands of the enemy.

Shortly after the giving of the pass-words and the check-words the kleagle talked. Then there was an address by a fire-brand from a neighboring state. He painted the glories of Klan membership in high color tones. He warned of the danger that was coming out of Rome.

Before the meeting broke up, we were given the grips and symbols. These are the same the country over. They are seldom changed, although minor modifications are effected.

Copyright, 1924, by the Boston American.

In tomorrow's article I shall expose these grips and symbols; what they mean, from the ordinary grip with which klansman meets klansman to the danger sign which is used when one member sees another in conversation with an alien he knows to be dangerous. There will be photographs illustrating the symbols and the grips.

MADLY IN LOVE.

Henry H. Richardson of Claremont was called into the case as counsel for Whitmore. No definite plan of action has been decided upon.

The Whitmore family stated the girl made two visits to the farm before she came to Claremont to marry Harry. They describe her as a pretty, dark-eyed, dark-haired, dressed in smart fashion. She told them she was a school teacher and blushingly admitted she was madly in love with Whitmore.

He is considered one of the most expert army officers in this area, having received for it during the World War D. S. C. and D. S. M.

MAN WHO FLED IN FEAR OF KLAN IS HUNTED

Templeton, Aug. 6.—Selectman Percy C. Young and Constable Robert M. Auringer aided by citizens, have tried in vain to get some trace of Daniel Sweeney, who, laboring under the delusion the Ku Klux Klan was after him, hid in the woods near Norcross Hill and disappeared.

The State police dragged the Otter River with no result. They will keep hunting for the man in the woods and in other ponds around Templeton.

Jamaica Plain Neighborhood Quarrel Cleared the Air of Many Things

What neighbors said about Benjamin Pearson of No. 48 Eliot street, Jamaica Plain, was simply awful.

They said it in West Roxbury Court a day or so ago, when they had the object of their wrath before Judge Ferris as a common railer.

Albert F. Reynolds, Miss Edith Reynolds, Mrs. Jeannette, Miss Marguerite Souther and Richard Gessner appeared in behalf of the neighbors.

Boys will be boys, but not around Pearson's place, they testified, at least not without getting into trouble.

Whenever a baseball was thrown on his lawn he took it, the neighbors said, and does charging through his flower garden drive him wild. They asked that he be made to keep the peace or move.

One neighbor said he had heard Pearson threaten to shoot a boy who chased a dog on his lawn.

The defendant testified that his wife was afraid of dogs, and that he did not object to boys unless they trampled his grass or tore down his rose bushes.

Fernandez, held by Judge Lowell of the Massachusetts Federal Court for extradition to Mexico on a charge of embezzlement of approximately $60,000 in Mexican government funds. The bail is fixed at $25,000. The motion was based on the condition of Fernandez's health, which physicians testified was seriously endangered by his confinement.

800 AT 2 KLAN MEETINGS IN WORCESTER CO.

Arms Are Seized in Autos as 75 Are Initiated by Headlights

Strategy and secrecy were the watchwords of the 800 Ku Klux Klansmen who met at Lunenburg and Oxford in Worcester County.

In the first place, the meetings were not advertised, and few except the constituted authorities knew they were to be held.

Klansmen from Ohio, Indiana and Texas were present at the meetings mustering in Worcester.

About 650 went to the Oxford konklave, in 175 automobiles, and the remaining 150 met at Lunenburg.

As a result of the secrecy, there was no disorder.

Although they had permits to hold the meetings, the klansmen had no permission to burn fiery crosses, and none were burned.

FEW ARMS SEIZED.

The klansmen attending the Oxford meeting were inspected for arms, and two revolvers, a club and a dirk were seized.

Nobody was arrested. The weapons were found in automobiles. Nobody would acknowledge ownership.

About 200 antiklansmen found out about the meeting at Oxford, but were prevented from stopping outside the meeting place by State troopers, who ordered them to keep on the move.

They stopped a mile or two down the road until the meeting was over. But as the Kluxers left they were not molested.

The Oxford meeting was on the farm of Dayton Hall, and there was no procession of automobiles. The klansmen came over the road in groups, attracting little attention.

The farm is well off the beaten path. So far off, in fact, that some of the klansmen accredited to the meeting had difficulty in finding the place.

IN GLARE OF AUTO LAMPS.

Forbidden to burn fiery crosses, the Kluxers conducted their grotesque ceremonies with the aid of their automobile headlights, blazing in a semi-circle.

Seventy-five men were initiated according to klan officials. The speakers were from Texas and Ohio. They told the strength of the klan in those States, and urged the 800 State klansmen to stand fast and not be discouraged.

Lieutenant Roy Kimball was in command of the State troopers on duty at the Oxford meeting.

At the Lunenburg meeting, Sergeant Edward F. Gullfy of the Holden barracks was in command. He had eight men with him. They policed the road for a mile on either side of the meeting place, on the lower Townsend road.

The meetings were decided on late yesterday, after the Kingston, N. H., meeting was called off.

In klan circles in Worcester County there is great interest in the story of a klan branding told by Lucien San Souci of Woonsocket, R. I. Frankly, they do not believe him.

San Souci, a reporter on La Tribune, a French daily, and a resident of the law, sticks to his story.

The probe of the alleged attack on him by the hooded klansmen is in charge of Chief of Police William J. Allaire of North Smithfield. The victim of the alleged assault insists that a branding iron in the shape of a K was used on him.

There are several parts of the story of San Souci on which the authorities are checking up. The police are unable to understand why he did not report the branding to the North Smithfield authorities.

The newspaperman insists that it was his curiosity alone that got him into the trouble.

CRAWLED INTO BRUSH.

"I overheard the men talking about the meeting and I decided to go," he told the police.

"I crawled into the brush near the meeting and lay concealed until one of the klansmen stepped on my leg. Then they pounced on me, hauled me out and finally, when I told them I wanted to see what was going on, they branded me on the forehead and arm.

"One of the Klansmen threw dirt in my face. When they turned me loose I was too upset to think much about anything, but ran the whole way home.

"Would I know any of my assailants? I'm afraid not, for they were all hooded.

"DIRT FARMER" AHEAD IN MISSOURI PRIMARY

St. Louis, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Dr. Arthur W. Nelson of Bunseton, "Dirt Farmer" candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket, had a fairly good lead over his four opponents on the face of early returns from the primary elections. Similarly, Sam A. Baker, Republican aspirant for gubernatorial nomination, was maintaining a good advantage over his three opponents.

Klan Victim

LUCIEN C. SAN SOUCI.

Woonsocket newspaperman sticks to his story that he was branded at a Klan meeting in Rhode Island. Klansmen, however, scoff at the story which is being investigated by the police. The brands which San Souci claims were administered by Klansmen are shown on the forehead and arm.

had suffered at the hands of the Lieutenant Governor, who gave his business to non-union sign writers.

P. F. Quinlan of the Street Carmen's Union said:

"Now is the time we have this bird where we want him. Now is the time to squelch him. When you get 'em is the time do do it. He is the hostile man in the automobile business to organized labor. His past record has proved him hostile."

Other delegates said Mr. Fuller was running a scab shop.

Aaron Velleman of the Cigarmakers' Union said that Mr. Fuller is an enemy of organized labor and now is the time to "bury" all enemies of organized labor.

M. J. Hines of Local 123, Boston, said:

"We don't want any more politicians here speaking either in defense of themselves or otherwise. Yesterday we had Dallinger. Today they want Fuller. Why not let all the politicians in to hand us a line of bunk they always give us before election, and then turn around and knife us afterward?"

Nolan's amendment received only one vote, evidently his own, and the resolution was then passed with only one dissenting vote.

Other resolutions were adopted calling on the Legislature to introduce a bill making it compulsory for every school child to learn to swim, a bill prohibiting the use of secondhand materials in upholstering, and endorsements were given daylight saving and New England Week.

McCaffrey then ordered Ponzi into the detention pen in the courthouse.

PEAVED AT DETENTION.

The prisoner did not protest, at first. Then he remembered he had forgotten his straw hat and asked that he be allowed to return for it. Permission was refused.

"I don't see what you are doing with me, anyhow," said the "wizard," petulantly.

"You are a prisoner and I am putting you where you belong," said the officer.

"Maybe the first time I ever heard the little man put in his place right," observed the deputy sheriff.

Ponzi's stay in the detention chamber was short, however. Approval of the surety offered was granted as soon as Deland was at liberty.

Ponzi, who is charged by Suffolk County with larceny and conspiracy to defraud, was sentenced in Federal court on November 30, 1920. The sentence was for five years. It was shortened for good behavior.

There were quite a few persons in the courthouse when Ponzi appeared. He did not seem nervous. He smiled at strangers as if he had not the slightest fear of any former customer, swindled out of the savings of a lifetime.

IDENTIFIES GIRL FOUND IN HOME OF N.Y. ARTIST

Mother Says That 'Barbara Dane' Was Born in Boston

New York, Aug. 6.—The mystery regarding the identity of the girl arrested in the studio of Bauchaval d'Acust, the artist, at No. 14 Washington square north, at 2 a. m. Monday, was cleared when her mother identified her in the Jefferson Market prison as Florence L. Hayden of Bryant avenue, the Bronx.

The girl when seized by the artist in a closet after she had invaded the studio by means of a fire escape and a kitchen window, said she was twenty years old and a dancer, but her mother was said to have displayed to Mrs. Alice Smith, chief probation officer in the prison, a birth certificate based in Boston, showing that Florence is only fifteen years old.

The mother said that the girl was the daughter of her first husband, and promised to be in the Tombs court when Florence, who had given the name of Barbara Dane of Boston, is arraigned for examination. She was unable to furnish bail of $3,000.

WOMAN'S CHARMS CONTINUE AFTER 31, SAYS BOSTON BEAUTY

MARRIAGE NO BAR TO STAGE

Mrs. Virginia Lee Boyce Asserts Motherhood Does Not Interfere With Work

At what age does a woman cease to be interesting and lose her charm?

Put to two celebrated beauties of the stage and screen, both of them "getting on," the question elicited replies which disclosed radically different points of view.

"I'm thirty-one and growing older every day," said Irene Castle, as she threatened to retire from the boards.

"Such nonsense as Irene talks," said Virginia Lee Boyer of Boston, Irene's friend.

"Charm doesn't depart with girlhood. Sometimes it grows more pronounced. And beauty, too.

"Her foolish statement that you can't have matrimony and a career is one I'm going to disprove one of these days.

MAY RETURN TO STAGE.

"When I see Irene in an old maids' home, nodding over her knitting and quarreling over whose she left her spectacles, I'll believe she's going to retire."

Mrs. Boyer, wife of William F. Boyer of Boston, formerly a lieutenant in the army, knows a little something about her subject.

With her two beautiful children, she won second prize in a nation-wide mothers and children contest, and that's how much married Virginia is.

Notwithstanding which she plans to return to the stage, if she can obtain the consent of her husband.

"I'm not so sure about this marriage and career business," he said, when a reporter saw him at their seashore apartment at Revere.

But as to the major question at issue—that of the charm of a woman after she becomes a wife and mother and emerges from the first flush of girlhood—he feels as his wife does.

To see Mrs. Boyer is to believe this, for she has as much beauty and animation as a sub-debutante and a grace, charm and intelligence that does not come to young women in the flapper stage of development.

APPEARED WITH IRENE.

For years Mrs. Boyer was in pictures and on the stage. She appeared with Irene Castle in many films.

George Gray Barnard, the sculptor, called her "an undulation in marble, grace in motion." Howard Chandler Christy said she was the perfectly balanced beauty.

She is far from the knitting stage herself and says when they lay her away on the shelf it will be in a mausoleum.

For the benfit of the public which has been reading of Mrs. Boyer for years, it may be said that she is not the Virginia Lee whose escapades have startled and amused Broadway for so long.

That Virginia, too is a brunette, and Andrew Carnegie is popularly supposed to have discovered her. That was in 1912, when the future Mrs. Boyer was a schoolgirl in New Orleans.

That Virginia Lee also is the girl who used to say she had million dollar legs and to send them in the front door of the Metropolitan home walking on air.

"NEVER BUT ONE."

When she returned to America after a foreign tour, the girl with the expensive legs told her press agents she was afraid she had because eleven men were waiting to marry her and she feared trouble.

"I never had eleven men waiting to marry me," said Mrs. Boyer. "There was but one.

"At times it has been embarrassing. I used to get not only the benefit of her publicity but her unpaid bills. When I was going to be married they insisted on getting us confused."

GIRL SUES RICH BOY AS FATHER OF CHILD

Chicago, Aug. 6 (Universal).—Stanley G. Case, Jr., son of the vice-president of the Case (and Martin Company, was named as the father of the two-months-old daughter of Bertha Curry, twenty-one years old, in a paternity suit brought by the girl. Case, she declared, had promised to marry her, but abandoned her to marry his present wife.

IMPORTANT CASE SETTLED.

Further discussion of Mrs. R. M. Thurlow's decorating problems will not be necessary. At a joint meeting of the family it was unanimously agreed to follow all Priscilla Price's suggestions as to color of rugs, kind of draperies, wall paper, upholstery, and bedroom chairs. Miss Price, who is in touch with the latest developments in household decoration, makes such practical and at the same time charming plans for interiors, that Boston American readers are coming more and more to depend on her for advice. Her services are free to members of the WNAC-American Women's Club.

DIFFERS WITH IRENE ON FLEEING CHARM

FRIENDS WHO DIFFER WIDELY

LIQUOR TRUCK RETURNED TO OLD OWNER

Providence, R. I., Aug. 6.—Another problem, the first time ever presented in the United States, has arisen to the Federal prohibition department.

Briefly, the problem is whether or not the United States marshal can guarantee title to a truck sold after it has been seized as a liquor carrier.

Heretofore, trucks sold by U. S. Marshal Rodman, after being taken in liquor seizures, have remained sold and have been the unquestioned property of the person making the purchase.

TAKEN IN RAID.

The truck of Mrs. Cecelia Cole of Warwick, seized in May, 1923, while laden with liquor, was sold by Marshal Rodman at the direction of the court. The truck was purchased by Louis Gordon of Providence for $195.

Mrs. Cole, through her attorney, secured a writ of replevin in the State court and this was served by the sheriff who took the truck from Gordon and returned it to Mrs. Cole after she gave a bond of $400 to Gordon to protect him in any future action.

APPEAL TO STONE.

The United States District Attorney's office has refused to contest the case in court, claiming that it is no part of the office to do such work in the State courts and Marshal Rodman has written to United States Attorney-General Stone for advice.

The action under which the truck was secured by Mrs. Cole is based on a decision of a court of appeals which held that a vehicle seized by dry agents could only be sold when the owner is convicted of illegal liquor transportation.

Mrs. Cole claimed the truck was stolen from her and she did not know who was using it when the police found the liquor in it. She was never prosecuted.

50,000 TONS OF PYROTOL FOR FARMS AND ROADS

Washington, Aug. 6.—Explosives enough to fill a freight train forty miles long are to be given away by the government to farmers for clearing land, and to the State governments for highway construction.

Announcement was made today that 100,000,000 pounds of pyrotol, part of the vast supplies of explosives gathered by the government for the World War, soon would be made available through State agencies, through the Bureau of Public Lands. Recipients must stand the cost of preparation and shipment.

CALL ON TINNEY COSTLY FOR IMOGENE

New York, Aug. 6.—Imogene Wilson is looking for a job.

Learning that Imogene visited Frank Tinney on board ship, Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., dismissed her from the cast of the Follies.

"This ends it," said Ziegfeld.

Imogene, who two months ago had Tinney in court for beating her, wept copiously while telling the funny man goodby on board the liner Columbus in which Tinney sailed for Europe and had to be ejected from his stateroom forcibly two minutes before the gangplank was up.

GARBED IN BLACK.

Mrs. Tinney, meanwhile, at her Long Island home, told reporters that a process server gave Frank a notice of a suit for separation which will break up the Tinney menage for the time being. She declared that she was like a postage stamp—not capable of being used twice.

Imogene appeared on the scene early under escort of Bobby Gray, Tinney's negro valet. Imogene was all in black, appropriately enough, and carried a dainty lace handkerchief which subsequently became a wet little ball.

It took her just three hours and fifty minutes to say au revoir to Frank. Ten minutes before sailing time loud voices were heard in the Tinney stateroom and Imogene came out clinging to the comedian's neck. Words were loud and tears plentiful. The phrase "You little fool" rang out on the air.

EYES VERY RED.

Bobby finally grasped the Wilson wrist and started for the gangplank. Imogene broke away and began her adieus over again. It happened still again. Then Bobby took the girl away. They had meant to go through the steerage exit to fool those abominable reporters. But that exit was already closed.

Followed by a wild flight through several decks and a final descent down the first-class gangplank right into the arms of publicity, Imogene's eyes were frightfully red and she didn't look pretty at all. So she jumped into a taxi, yelled out, "I haven't a single thing to say," just as Frank had done when cornered, and yanked down the shade.

ALIENIST SAYS LOEB KILLED FRANKS BOY

Dr. Glueck Declares Slayer Is "Without Remorse and Lacking in Normal Emotion"

Chicago, Aug. 6 (I.N.S.).—"A boy without remorse, without regret and utterly lacking in normal human emotion."

This was the picture of Richard A. Loeb, "angel face Dicky" the girls used to call him, that was painted in Judge Caverly's sombre courtroom today by Dr. Bernard Glueck, an alienist, formerly in charge of the psychiatrist department in Sing Sing Prison.

Dr. Glueck said he had been dealing with criminal minds for fifteen years and he unhesitatingly pronounced the slayer of young Bobby Franks as the most "incomprehensible and unusual one" of the lot.

Incidentally, Dr. Glueck revealed that it was Loeb and not his intellectual accomplice, Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., who actually swung the chisel on the head of the Franks boy after they had coaxed him into their automobile.

"Dicky" himself told him of it, Dr. Glueck said, in the most matter of fact way and without a glint of horror or remorse.

DISORDERED PERSONALITY.

"I have observed many criminals, hardened criminals," said Dr. Glueck, "among them many men who were awaiting execution, and yet I was amazed by the absolute lack of any normal feeling, any emotion, any regret, that characterized his story to me of the Franks homicide.

"It is incomprehensible except on the basis of a disordered personality.

"Never before have I seen such a profound disparagement between the intellectual and the emotional."

Dr. Glueck said that "Dicky" talked to him about his own possible hanging for the Franks crime with precisely the same lack of emotion that he showed regret that he talked about the classi murder.

"He said to me, 'It's too bad a fellow can't read about it in the newspapers,' said Dr. Glueck.

LABOR CHIEFS REJECT PLEA OF DAVIS

Fire Hot Shot at Democratic Platform in Reply to Wilson

By KENNETH CLARK

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 7 (I.N.S.)—John W. Davis and the Democratic platform today drew a scathing fire from the American Federation of Labor. The executive council of the Federation, meeting here behind guarded doors, prepared a blistering reply to overtures from Democratic leaders who urged that the Federation's endorsement of presidential candidates be delayed until after the Davis acceptance speech in Clarksburg, W. Va., next week.

Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation, drafted the reply. It was directed to William B. Wilson, former Democratic Secretary of Labor, one of Gompers' closest friends and workers in labor union movements.

ACTION WAS TAKEN.

Wilson previously sent a communication to Gompers asking an opportunity to present the Democratic labor stand and Davis' labor record to the Federation.

Labor chiefs charged that Wilson's message was forwarded from the collection of Davis himself.

Wilson's communication, however, reached the Federation after the council had already endorsed La Follette and Wheeler.

Council members said today that not even a suggestion was made to accede to the Democrats' wishes.

NO CHANCE FOR CHANGE.

Nothing that Davis may say in Clarksburg can alter the Federation's course in the presidential campaign, Gompers' spokesmen declared today. This was pointed out strongly in the reply, together with the statement that not only are Davis and Bryan "unacceptable to labor," but that the Democratic platform, particularly in relation to legislative regulation the hours and conditions of workers, "plays into the hands of labor's enemies."

The actual text of the council's answer to Wilson suggestions in declined form will be Federation cannot support Davis, and silently calling the Democratic plank on labor problems, probably will not be made public until tonight. The council spent hours wrangling over the wording a few members opposing the forceful language used.

Charlie Hubbard's Fiancee Just As Athletic As He

By Betty Alden

EVERYONE knows about Charlie Hubbard's wonderful football playing.

There's been plenty of excitement about that over in the Stadium and down in the big Yale bowl. Incidentally, Charlie was unanimously elected captain of the Crimson eleven two years ago.

When this strapping gridiron star—he's six feet two—found the girl of his choice, she turned out to be Miss Anna Fuller, daughter of the Henry Fullers of Cambridge. Their engagement was announced less than a year ago.

Apparently Miss Fuller isn't going to cast any reflection upon the athletic standing of the Hubbard-Fuller team. Not that she indulges in the pigskin sport, but she does wield a mean racquet.

She took part in the recent matches held at the Essex County Club, Manchester, and then went over to New Jersey for the invitation tournament held last week at Seabright. She nearly reached the semi-finals, receiving defeat at the hands—or racquet—of Miss Mary K. Browne of California, who was national champion for three years.

Playing the net game isn't Anna Fuller's only accomplishment. She's a corking good "jazz" player, and can wind the frolics around her little finger—and then some!

I remember very well the scintillating pianologue given by Miss Fuller, pretty Laura Taylor and auburn-haired Alice Thomas, in "Wake Up," last Spring's Vincent Club production. It was one of the most heartily applauded numbers in the show and deserved to be.

To further prove the versatility of the Hubbard-Fuller team, Charlie, who received his sheepskin from Harvard this year, was awarded the Francis H. Burr scholarship last Fall. This scholarship is awarded to the senior who best combines the qualities of character, scholarship, leadership and athletic ability.

ANNA FULLER

This Cambridge girl, who was snapped while playing on the Essex County Club courts, is taking part in various tournaments this Summer. She is the fiancee of Charles Hubbard, Jr., Crimson football star.

ANOTHER follower of the net sport is Miss Dorothy Neyhart, daughter of the Adnah Neyharts, whose estate in Framingham is known as "Redgate Farm."

Dorothy Neyhart

Miss Neyhart was of the large group going down to the North Shore to take part in the tennis matches held last week at the Montserrat Golf Club.

Both Dorothy Neyhart and her sister Ruth, are among society's most skilful equestriennes. Any brisk Fall morning is apt to find them following the hounds of the Norfolk Hunt Club, the hunting estates in the Framingham-Dover-Medfield section.

MUCH of the credit for the success of the tennis matches held at the Montserrat Golf Club goes to E. Sohier Welch, chairman of the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Welch have visiting them just now at "Old Fort House," their West Manchester place, Baron Romers Doblhoff of Vienna.

During the Winter season, Mr. and Mrs. Welch—their town house is on Beacon street—are always among the first to sponsor any musical project. Mr. Welch, in fact, has largely instrumental in bringing the Chicago Opera Company to town last Winter. They were nightly attendants during the stay of the songsters from the Windy City, and Mrs. Welch, who is of the tall and slender blonde type, was easily one of the most regal-looking matrons seated in the "horse-shoe."

At the meeting today it was announced the managers had withdrawn this compromise offer. Officials of the union said the members may decide to take immediate action against the theatre managers.

PORTLAND WARD TO SETTLE ELECTION

Brewster, the Defeated Candidate, Has Lead of 523 in Balance of State

Portland, Me., Aug. 6.—State Senator Ralph O. Brewster, defeated by Frank G. Farrington of Augusta by 320 votes on the face of official returns of the June primaries for the Republican nomination for Governor, came down to Ward Four in his home city today with a plurality of 523, after completion of the recount in other parts of the state.

Nearly 1,000 citizens of that ward, whose names were checked on the voting lists on June 18 as having voted, had been summoned to appear before the Governor and Council at the city building this afternoon, tonight or tomorrow forenoon, to testify whether they voted and whether their vote was for Farrington or Brewster.

This was being done to eliminate possible fraudulent votes and permit the counting of ballots actually cast in that ward, where it was alleged more than 200 were stuffed into the ballot box and names of persons who did not vote were checked off, including those deceased or removed from that ward.

The vote there, according to the returns, was 718 for Farrington and 153 for Brewster. With these figures included, Senator Farrington had a lead of only 42 in the state.

LAST BOSTON AMERICAN OUTING GREAT SUCCESS

So that's all there are; there aren't any more Boston American outings for mothers and children this Summer.

According to thousands of kids and their mothers, they were a great success.

F. S. Cummings.

At the last one, the usual program was carried out. There was a sail down the harbor in two of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company's boats, personally directed by Manager Frederick L. Lane. What a regular guy he turned out to be! The kids on the bus sent paid him with three and a tiger.

At the beach, those who wanted to went in bathing. H. Sarkin, manager of a bathing establishment, provided facilities.

Then there was lunch. Francis S. Cummings, manager of the Cummings Milk Company, furnished the milk. Manager Sargent of the Berwick Cake Company gave the cakes. Frank Archer of the Moxie Company distributed lollypops. Howard J. Bushway of the Bushway Ice Cream Company provided the ice cream. Then Manager Joe Stone of Paragon Park threw the park open.

BOY'S LEGS CRUSHED UNDER AUTO TRUCK

John J. Reardon, ten years old, of No. 48 Woodlawn street, Forest Hills, fell under an automobile truck today in Hyde Park and so badly injured his right leg that physicians at the City Hospital declare they will have to amputate.

Reardon descended from the truck before it had come to a stop, lost his balance and fell under the rear wheels.

MARASCHINO CHERRIES FROM FRANCE

EVEN the growing of cherries was interfered with by the war—and not since then have we been able to get the really luscious French Maraschino Cherries that are so far superior to the domestic variety.

Only now have conditions in France become favorable to the growing of the splendid, juicy, full-bodied, wonderfully-flavored Maraschino. After a search of months, Mr. George W. Loft's personal quest in France was rewarded by finding a grower who had both the quality of cherry and a capacity for growing them equal to our demands.

This grower's entire output will come to Loft's. The first shipment has just arrived, and from now on will be used exclusively in making Loft's Milk Chocolate Maraschino Cherries—the envy of the candy world and the delight of those who eat them.

Here is a confection that surpasses in quality and deliciousness any you have had in years—the fine French Cherry covered with tasty fondant cream, surrounded with our creamy milk chocolate.

A real treat awaits you at all our stores where you can now buy these unsurpassable Maraschino Cherries for only 75c a Pound. A sample free.

WADE TO HAVE NEW PLANE AT PICTOU, N. S.

Craft Will Fly Via Boston to Meet World Flier on His Arrival

Washington, Aug. 6 (I.N.S.)—Lieutenant Leigh Wade, the American round-the-world flier, who was forced down between Scotland and Iceland, will be given another airplane at Pictou, N. S., to accompany Lieutenants Smith and Nelson into the United States on their return, it was announced at the War Department today.

Secretary of War Weeks authorized the assembling of a crushing airplane at Langley Field, Virginia, to be sent to Nova Scotia for Lieutenant Wade, whose original plane was wrecked.

When the plane is assembled, it will be flown to Nova Scotia by Lieutenant George MacDonald of the air service, who will make stops at Keyport, N. J., and Boston. He will arrive in Pictou Harbor a few hours before the arrival of the American airmen from Labrador.

Lodge Writing Book of Correspondence With Roosevelt

Washington, Aug. 6.—The recent illness of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts has been a matter of anxious concern to President Coolidge and his official family.

The President expressed gratification at word that the Senator was so much improved he had resumed work on his forthcoming book.

This is a compilation of the letters which passed between Senator Lodge and Theodore Roosevelt over a period of 25 years. They treat of men and events with great freedom. One from Roosevelt was written in the Cuban trenches on a scrap of wrapping paper.

The book is scheduled to make its appearance on Roosevelt's birthday in October.

ENGINE ABLAZE, FLIER LANDS IN MONSOON

Luck Provides Lieut. Smith With Landlocked Lagoon in Terrific Storm

(This is the fourth installment of Hayden Talbot's series on the American world flight. It deals with what the flyers considered their most serious situation in the first 10,000 miles of their trip—when Lieut. Smith's plane was forced down in French Indo China and he consumed two days in getting a new engine. Talbot is at Kurkvall, Orkney Islands, where he followed the flyers when they left Brough.)

By HAYDEN TALBOT
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to Universal Service. (Copyright, 1924, by Universal Service.)

Kirkwall, Orkney Islands, Aug. 6.—Lieut. Leigh Wade is definitely out of the world flight, and the other two planes are at Iceland prepared for the hop to Greenland, Wade's plane, the "Boston," has been abandoned by the Richmond, but a British trawler is towing it back to the Faroe Islands.

From the time that Major Martin was lost in Alaska, reducing the world-flight expedition to three planes, 15,000 or more miles of air were traversed by the men who left Houton Bay in the last two days to flight their way to Horna Fjord, Iceland, and the loss of the "Boston" is the first real accident to end seriously.

However, in other parts of the world the fliers had many harrowing experiences, and just before leaving England Lieutenants Smith and Arnold related some of them to me, including a fire which menaced Smith's plane over French Indo-China, forcing him to come down during a monsoon.

Both Lieutenants Smith and Arnold in describing the mechanical imperfection which forced the leader of the flight to cut off power and glide downwards onto the surface of the water, stressed the point that nothing derogatory to the machine should be inferred.

WHEN TROUBLE CAME.

"Here, substantially, is their tale:

"Apart from the wretched atmospheric conditions to which we have already referred, everything has gone swimmingly with all three ships.

"Just before this trouble we had been fighting our way through a monsoon which we could see had kicked up some very rough water. The thought occurred to both of us, not at all unnaturally, that our planes could not last five minutes if we should have to land in those mountainous seas. But as none of us had experienced the slightest engine trouble in more than 10,600 miles, it was only a passing thought.

"Then suddenly the thing happened. It was only a few minutes before we both knew that something was radically wrong. Both of us sensed the slackening of the driving power. It was as if the propeller blades were not biting into the air as they should. But in the unusual atmospheric conditions which caused our instruments to show 1,000 feet elevation at sea level, and considering the monsoon, neither of us suspected the truth.

"When, however we saw dense black smoke pouring out beneath our engine the realization that something was radically wrong burst upon us.

"Our first fear was that the engine was on fire or, if not that, at least some vital part was smashed. Whatever it was the thing of vital importance was to land as quickly as possible.

"At first glance this looked hopelessly out of the question. An instant cutting off of the engine made no impression upon the quantity of smoke that continued to pour out underneath the engine housing.

LANDED IN LAGOON.

"Suddenly we spied a lagoon which seemed completely landlocked, and as it presently developed, was as calm as the proverbial mill pond, having escaped the force of the monsoon. It was a long glide and seemed never ending, but we just managed to take it without many inches to spare.

"In the meantime the other two planes seeing our plight, circled about waiting for our signals."

Up to this point, both Smith and Arnold jointly contributed to the matter of fact narrative, but now Lieutenant Smith gravely proceeded:

"Obviously I had been completely occupied in getting the ship down, but the minute we had landed I discovered what Arnold had been up to in the meantime. And I would like to say this was about as merry a stunt as I ever hope to see.

"In the face of the full gale, whose force was increased by the speed of our machine, Arnold had grabbed the fire extinguisher, climbed out of his after cock pit, climbed over the struts and, got down to the bottom of the engine.

"Of course he knew it was impossible to use the fire extinguisher while we were in the air, but his idea was to be on the spot and go at the job the instant we did land. And it is what he did, and with such good effect that the fire was out by the time I joined him on the pontoon.

SNOWBALL IDEA TO BOOM NEW ENGLAND WEEK

The All New England Week movement is growing in size like a snowball, and the rolling snowball is being used to develop its growth further in this city, subchairman reported at the meeting of the Boston City Committee, held at No. 177 Milk street.

When Chairman Charles H. Burleigh suggested to the subchairman that they organized committees after this fashion, he was met with several requists to be heard. Clarence N. Goward, president of the Eagle Oil Committee, as chairman of the oil and lubricant group, said he had seven fellow members of the committee, who had brought into the active support of the movement 146 others, and that each of the latter was enlisting a group, so that the snowball effect in his group had already gained strength.

Colonel W. A. Root, chairman of the construction division, made a somewhat similar report of activity and accomplishment, adding that he had every reason to believe he would receive 100 full cooperation of the Building Trades Employers' Association.

Mrs. Fred A. Summers of the Federation of Women's Clubs brought word that the women of New England were back of the idea to get acquainted with New England products. The organized group of women were already at work, she said, and a corps of speakers to talk to the housewives and other women in every State is being organized.

The meeting was attended by forty chairmen of divisions of the Boston City Committee, and they agreed to work out a plan for passing along to the 268 lines of business actively represented all the circulars, stickers and literature that the All New England Committee may devise, rather than to try and set up any appeals that might be in conflict with the general idea.

The wide recognition by the press of New England, and by the Boston newspapers in particular, of the All New England Week idea was made a matter of mention by several of the chairmen.

MAYOR SENDS SYMPATHY OF BOSTON TO WADE

Mayor Curley sent the following message of sympathy to Lieutenant Leigh Wade, U. S. A., commanding the airplane Boston at Reykjavik, Iceland:

"Citizens of Boston desire to extend expression of sympathy in unfortunate accident. Sincerely trust you can come to the ceremonies here in honor of the round-the-world aviators."

HAS HELD BACK HONEYMOON 3 YEARS

In the office of Mayor Quinn of Cambridge they are still gasping over the belated honeymoon of Miss Mary Delaney and John G. Mahler.

Until a few days ago nobody thought of Miss Delaney as anything but a charming young single woman and the private secretary of the mayor.

Then she announced she was going on her honeymoon with Mr. Mahler, who is an employee of the New England Telephone Company.

"When are you two going to be married?" friends demanded, a little taken aback and were more so when she answered, "oh, three years ago."

It was even so. Miss Delaney that was has no use for the wisecre who discovered that a woman can't keep a secret.

She reasoned it all out three years ago. If she married, single girls wouldn't like the idea of her retaining her appointment. She kept mum.

It came out when her sister Anne was married, and Mary announced that she and her husband and Anne and her husband were going to make their honeymoon a double two some. When they return, Mr. and Mrs. Mahler will start housekeeping.

ANN LUTHER SAYS WHITE MADE LOVE

Millionaire Occupied Drawing Room With Her to California

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 6 (United Service)—Jack White's love rousing in Spanish, alternating with promises of "more jewels than Peggy Joyce owns," dried the tears that Ann Luther wept when she discovered she and White were to occupy one Pullman drawing room on the trip to California.

Miss Luther told this to the jury in Judge Valentine's court while White, apparently enjoying a private joke of his own, smiled serenely.

She had promised sensations in her $100,000 breach of contract suit against the millionaire mining man, and she recalled them with her well-remembered details of their association.

MET IN NEW YORK.

Ann started her story with her meeting with White in New York and said White suggested she go to California where he would place her at the head of her own company.

Ann agreed, she said, but White did all the arguing. It was White, she said, who supposedly shed tears "for clothes," and offered her $3,000 to buy them, with White who said he would "look out for everything," and Ann herself who insisted, that she would accept money "only as part of the business arrangement."

"What was said about your reputation?" asked Attorney Raymond Howard.

"It was not discussed at all," she said.

"Did he mention salary?" asked Howard.

"Yes, he said something about it, but I didn't want to talk about money then," answered Ann.

THEN MONEY TALKED.

Money talked the next day, however, she said, when she and White went on a shopping trip to Fifth avenue's most expensive shops. Twenty-five hundred dollars vanished like mist.

"And when you left New York?" prompted Howard.

Ann blushed a little.

"Yes, we went to the station, and the porter took my bags into the drawing room, and the first thing I knew, White came in with his bags.

I just looked at him, and I said: 'White, don't cry, little girl. I won't bother you.'

"And he told me that I'd have to travel as Mrs. White—I was terribly annoyed and cross with him," said Ann.

HIS CONFESSION.

But she "felt a little better" when they left for California. On the first day out, she said, White talked business. He intended to make four pictures, he said investing $100,000 in each one.

Then she added, White told her he had a confession to make.

"He said he loved me, and I was the first girl he had really ever loved," she confided to the jury.

"He told me he loved me at first sight. He made love to me in Spanish and translated some of the words, and he held my hand. He said I should have more jewels than Peggy Joyce, and cars and houses and everything. He showed me a picture of himself with a $10,000 car and said that would be my first present.

"Then he said he wanted to marry me, and that we could go to Mexico and be married. He told me he had been married before, but that he didn't love the girl.

BOY KIDNAPED FROM ARMS OF HIS AUNT

Two-year-old William M. S. Fisher, son of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fisher of No. 17 Glenwood street, Roxbury, was kidnaped from in front of his home today.

The baby was snatched from the arms of his aunt, just started away in an automobile.

According to Mrs. Fisher and her maid, a former Cambridge woman, from whom the automobile was seen in the car to first street. Mrs. Fisher declared her husband made an unsuccessful attempt to kidnap the child last April.

The woman, who is distracted with grief, said she thought her husband was on the way to Canada.

Mrs. Fisher was granted a separation from her husband last February, and obtained legal custody of her two children two weeks ago. The other child, Warren Harold Fisher, is only one year old.

At the time of the separation Judge O'Connell of the Superior Court gave Fisher permission to visit the children, but he has never taken advantage of it, according to his wife.

Today Daisy Wilbur was in the arms of his aunt on the sidewalk in front of the Fisher home, when an auto with curtains on drove up and stopped.

A man leaped out, snatched the child from his aunt's arms, and jumped back into the machine with him. According to Mrs. Fisher, as then passed the baby to Fisher, who was in the front seat.

The boy is described as having dark brown hair, dark eyes, and wore a dark blue outfit, "Silver Tale" suit, no stockings and sandals. His favorite expression, according to his mother, is: "Whoo take your boy?" The police have been notified.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith and Eric Nelson, United States Army World Aviators, expect to remain here several days after their stormy trip from Hoefn Hornafjord, on the eastern coast of Iceland.

SIX ESCAPED PRISONERS STILL ELUDE POLICE

The six prisoners who escaped from the detention pen connected with the Suffolk County Superior Court are still at large.

At first it was believed only five men had escaped through the sawed bars of the detention room and slid over roofs, but a later checking up showed that a sixth man was missing.

The sixth fugitive is George J. Mahoney, aged 29, of No. 1 Codman park, Roxbury, who had been sentenced in the Dorchester district court and was before the Superior court on an appeal.

The other prisoners for whom the police are searching are Thomas Gildea, Owen Quilty, Herbert Gill, Wesley C. Klockner and George Masters.

AFTER BABY ARRIVES
Many Mothers Weak, Nervous
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps to Restore Health

A great many letters similar to the following recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the new mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by a nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

Now Well Again

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"After I had my second child I felt sick, very nervous and could not do much. Then after the other baby came I was worse than ever. I suffered this way for a long time and did not know what to do. I was looking over my cook books and found one of your little books and I sat down and read every page. Then I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it before I stopped, and now I am well again. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends."— Mrs. JOHN MITZKE, 773 8th Ave., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Buffalo, N. Y.— "My health got worse after my little girl's birth, and my mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had done her so much good. I had headaches and tired feelings, with no ambition, also pains at times so it hurt me to walk. With the Vegetable Compound I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I have been greatly helped. I do hope you will use my letter as a testimonial as it will help other women."— Mrs. GEORGE SHOEMAKER, 949 Emslie St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Followed Friend's Advice

Vienna, South Dakota.—"After my second child was born I was completely run-down and didn't care for anything. I had sharp pains in my sides and a white discharge and was nervous and weak. I didn't seem to care how I neglected my work. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it for two months the first time and one month the last time. It has helped me in a great many ways and the pains have left me entirely. I certainly wish you to know how much benefit I have received."— Mrs. G. W. FREEMAN, Vienna, South Dakota.

Such letters and a successful record of fifty years should convince every ailing woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine she needs. For sale by druggists everywhere.

'FOLLIES' OFFER NEW BRAND OF BURLESQUE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

MAKE your mind up to it at once—burlesque] is stepping forward and upward, as you will discover in the case of "Follies of the Day" at Mr. Waldron's Hanover street temple of fun, the Casino.

It was never like that in the old days of grotesque comedians, slapstick humor and more or less fulsome ladies of the chorus.

To prove the case, Barney Gerard, who is the responsible mais parent of "Follies of the Day," has inserted into the entertainment two fine examples of what burlesque used to be. Right there you see the difference.

"BOZO" TAKES LEAD.

In any edition of "Follies of the Day," "Bozo" Snyder, the voiceless comedian, takes an easy lead and in the great sixteenth scene must start he more than holds his own with anything he has done before.

As a pantomimist "Bozo" tops the field against all rivals and has been doing it year after year, much to advancement of Mr. Gerard's box office affairs, as well as to his own reputation.

But "Bozo" is not all there is to the "Follies"—although he is unquestionably the motive power back of the show's rush to triumph. Individually, Elsa May displays a mid-blonde liveliness that adds color to the entertainment, and Marie Taylor, tuned to a darker shade of beauty, holds down a substantial portion of the vocal responsibilities.

ELABORATE SETTINGS.

In "Follies of the Day," it is not so much what is done as how it is done, and in this respect the burlesque ventures into pastures usually occupied by musical entertainment in which value is determined by a much loftier per capita tariff.

Here you find the full adornment of a Broadway revue, with heavy draperies, cut to particular fashion, elaborate settings, and finally a gorgeous diamond horseshoe built on two levels, upon which the entire collective beauty of Mr. Gerard's entertainment festoons itself in glittering array.

No siree, the old burlesque was never like that.

RADIO CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN SEPT.

The wheels of the department of commerce in Washington have started to move toward preliminary arrangements for the third radio conference, to be held the latter part of September under the auspices of Secretary Hoover.

A preliminary list of twelve questions has been prepared by officials of the department which will be a nucleus for a complete program which will deal with such matters as wave lengths, the betterment of broadcast programs, the question of super-power stations and many other matters of particular interest to radio fans of the country.

YALE RECEIVES $60,000 UNDER WILL DECISION

AMERICAN ENDS INTERFERENCE IN BRAINTREE

Troublesome Noises Located in Ringing Generator in Telephone Exchange

There is to be no more gnashing of teeth among Braintree radio fans.

Because the Boston American has at last got onto its job and located the villainous interference which has threatened the sanity of Braintree fans.

The trouble was located in the Braintree telephone exchange. The telephone company has promised to remedy it at once, or even sooner.

The work was undertaken as part of the American's campaign to end radio interference. This began last Winter, when, through the efforts of this paper, interference by ships was practically eliminated.

The Braintree interference was located by the American's Amateur Listener, aided and abetted by a Baby Giant superheterodyne loop and loud speaker.

The equipment was taken to various parts of Braintree until the noise was found to be loudest. Loop bearings were taken from various places. These were found to indicate the telephone exchange as the chief offender.

As the set was brought near the building the noise increased until it was deafening, and most of the neighborhood came out to see who was being murdered. Close to the building the interference was so powerful that the tubes were paralyzed.

Inside the building a ringing generator was found to spark in exact time with the peculiar sounds which constituted the interference, and this machine was at once indicted as the cause of the trouble.

The interference was carried all over Braintree by the telephone lines.

The elimination of this interference is a comparatively easy matter, and tomorrow we will tell you how the telephone company will go about it.

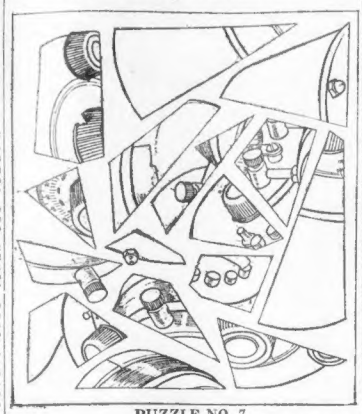
After a Hard Night With The Earphones on



PUZZLE NO. 7

Here you see how you look the morning after a night with the radio—all shot to pieces.

Also you see how Apple Sauce, once our cheerful, whistling office boy, has got all broken up trying to count and sort the puzzle answers that swarm in every day.

In the queer shaped piece in the southwest corner you see the corrugations in his freckled brow.

Lest you get the heebie-jeebies, too, we'll tip you off that you don't need to write a book about each puzzle. Some of you fellows must have dug out every radio work in the public library to be able to tell us that a condenser was used to agglutinate the phantasmagorical luebnbrations of the phythisical parallelapiped. A few words in simple language is enough, although the other way of doing it is correct enough.

In either case you're well on the way to these prizes: 1st, Coto Coil 4-tube receiver; 2nd, Acmeflex kitset for a four-tube reflex; 3rd, choice of pair of Como matched push-pull amplifiers or a Trinity loud speaker; 4th, Peerless twin audio transformer; 5th, Se-Ar-De audio transformer; 6th, General Radio variable condenser, .0005 mfd. with vernier gear; 7th, Peerless Kondenser kit; 8th, pair Towers' earphones, and 9th, National four-inch Velvet Vernier Dial.

Right Answer To Puzzle No. 1

Puzzle No. 1 was a variable condenser. A variable condenser is used in radio chiefly for tuning purposes.

Those who reported that it was used for varying capacity, or who gave a similar answer were marked correct.

Radio Queries

I have a two-tube Superflex built of standard parts which I am using with a coiled spring indoor antenna, which has worked well with various regenerative sets. I have heard only WNAC, WGI, KDKA, WCO, and WJAR. WNAC comes in on the loud speaker with very good volume. L. J. S.

The Superflex is designed for the average outdoor antenna. If you plan to use it with an indoor one, you will do well to experiment with more turns on the primary of the first unit.

Can you give me some information about the new coils used in the Super? I have made a Super since this Summer for friends at Brooklyn, N. Y., and they have pulled in Shepard's WNAC at will, which is something out of the ordinary there with high-priced sets of five and six tubes. We average about 1,000 to 1,200 miles on the loud speaker. T. A. K.

This is darn good even for the Super, as Brooklyn is a tough place to get out of (for radio). The only new coils for the Super are the diamond weave, and we are mailing you the address of a dealer and the manufacturer. If you wish to make them, they are wound on the usual form in diamond weave style, the first turn spaced the diameter of one and a half inches. Wind eight turns primary and eleven turns secondary, with primary underneath.

My Super does not work right and I would like to have the coils. Please give turns for diamond weave. How long an aerial will lead in to best? T. H. Md.

Data for coils given in answer above. We will do its duty with any length of aerial, but the longer the better up to the point where there is excessive pickup of interference.

I am building an American Super and would like to know where I can buy Sickles coils and Wittham condensers. A. H. J.

Dealers' names being sent you.

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

Boston Girl's Impassioned Love Story and Her Struggle to Live It Down and Come Back

SHE said vaguely, under a compulsion to speak: "That's so—you're right—I'm not taking chances, Mr. Lamarck. Oh, really!"

"Ah—My dear! You'll let me give you the many things you want? I can, you know—everything a beautiful young girl in your place is looking for. See here—they were for you! You didn't know that? Was it jealous you were? Here they are!"

He held up the string of opals, dropped it slowly in her lap. When she didn't even turn her head, when she only caught her breath sharply, Luis came closer: "Take them, my darling. I won't come—either I have my string on you—" His hand crept over hers—"You can be as free as a bird if you like—"

Chickie saw a dark shadow movie—ah, Wildie trotting quickly in the middle of the street. She jumped abruptly to the ground, giving a little sobbing laugh so great was her ecstasy of relief. She took the opals and dashed them in Lamarck's face: "You go—Luis Lamarck! Go!"

He sprang back, dumfounded and aghast—inside a furious gust for her whims. "You devil! You little devil!" He pressed his face forward till it touched hers, clinched his arms. "No—will I! Will I!"

She threw her head back with a soft, frantic cry and saw a leap through the air. Came a flat impact of bodies, a snarling growl. Luis reached backwards, Wildie jamming against him.

Murderous Growl

A murderous growl—then Chickie ran. She yelled: "Dog! Dog!" and pulled with all her might on his collar: "Down—down Wildie!" He turned to her with a furious snapping sound, hunched till his head burrowed along the ground, fulmined her.

She stood a few feet from the prostrate figure, limbs trembling and breathless. But seeing Lamarck roll over on his side, sweating, half staggering to his feet, a fluttering, wild elation seized her.

Luis crouched on his knees, the snarling, dazed passion of an animal in his pose: "Hold the beast! My God—want to murder me!"

Wildie pulled along the ground on his haunches, so that Chickie had to hug her arms about him, laughing against his ear. "Hush, Wildie—no!" She could see Lamarck's white shirt, the sleeve of his coat ripped in two.

She said: "Get up. Can't you see! Get out of here quick. I'll hold the dog a moment longer. You go. And when you—never speak to me again. Never come within a block of me!"

He held his head against his shoulder, kept looking at it. He backed from them, heavy, spitting sounds rushing through his teeth.

When he was gone Chickie sank to the ground, pulling the dog's head against her shoulder, and cried with fate in her heart. Wildie licked her face soothingly like an old woman saying: "There now. We won, didn't we?"

Relief it was that brought the tears. An uplift as of some tremendous victory stirred through every pulse; as though it were she and her own brave spirit, not just the dog, that had conquered. She felt, for some reason, dauntless and glad. She kept saying: "Oh, you dog! You're a blessed thing—you are!"

For that he licked her hand hastily, shook his head as though to put an end to this embarrassing conversation. Yet he clung to her side, all but walking on her feet the whole distance home.

Not all the dog who had won. Chickie knew this. He sat at her feet that night. As she read, her hand stroked his sleek, beautiful head, and there was in her thoughts now a sense of power; a feeling of confidence she had not known before.

Two hours ago she had wished to rush out into some struggling crowd, jab with her elbows, walk over people's feet. She had burned with hate.

Now she had for life a sense of comradeship, as though she and it set forth together on a great, hazardous adventure; and, indeed, made a brilliant, flying start. Chickie was willing, even eager, to bet on herself and the outcome.

Bolted Free

Luis Lamarck would have tagged her; would have given her what a "beautiful young girl in her place was seeking"—would have hushed her into the old, cruel groove. She had bolted free.

Not chance this time that had saved her—self-wood, old dog too. She laughed, caught his thin jaws, looking into the steadfast, devoted eyes that had yet such a lordly light about them. "Love your pretty lad, don't you, dog? You want I tell you, wait!"

She got up early Sunday morning, walked in a blithe, marching sun. She wanted the Sunday papers. It occurred to her that she would find a job—and that it would be a good one. It should, of course—three times, you know, for luck—

She walked clear to the tunnel to buy her paper from old Julie. Julie was a friend of hers—the only one she had down here.

Julie wasn't there. The conductor who stood at the incline answered Chickie's inquiry: "Julie?". Dumped last night by an automobile—taken to the hospital."

Oh, sure! He guessed she was dead all right—old bones are brittle.

Bought Paper

Chickie bought her paper. She took the car and changed for the quietest of all the beaches and to her the most beautiful. There was one white house set in a broad green lawn, right across the street from the glorious old ocean. There were long rows of these houses but this one had an air about it—self-possessed and serene. Chickie always walked past it. She wondered what sort of people lived within and if they always came out of an evening to see the sun plunge redly in the waters.

As soon as Wildie saw the waves he tugged at his leash. He was ready for a run. Chickie sat down and read the ads. She kept thinking of the Bailey, gentle old woman, doubled almost in two—yet ready to bless the world benighly if any extra penny dropped to her hand.

There were only three ads calling for expert service, offering to pay a "good salary to the right party." Chickie pictured in her mind what these jobs were like—how her days would pass if one of them were given her; the routine from nine to five, the return to the boarding house for dinner, a walk; hours of reading—then bed.

And if she were lucky and kept the job this would go on years and years until she became colorless with a piping, cheerful voice—another Miss Cheesman.

And on this glowing Sunday morning, with a myriad jewels sparkling on the waters, a white cloud sailing like a bird and autumn dropping a red-gold beauty on the city's imperial wall of hills—on this day, with a touch of buoyance in her thoughts, Chickie wanted more—more than this. Hard to think of yourself always and always alone.

Mary was right. This wasn't living. This was just avoiding life; dwelling within herself; giving no joy to a single, single other!

She got up suddenly and called to Wildie. Why, even Jake said she'd have to do better than that.

It occurred to her with a thrill that she should visit Julie. Poor old thing—she'd expect that much.

Bent, grotesque figure, whose aspect prompted even the thoughtless to wonder why she should live on and on while everywhere the young and happy were taken.

Odd that this hatered fragment should forge the link between Chickie and a new if deeper, harder life.

Other Hearts

Old Julie didn't die. And Chickie didn't get a job. But she made a friend.

This was the nurse on duty in the ward where Julie lay—Eva Chase, a big, soft, garrulous body with a nice moonface and a slipshod manner.

Chickie was immensely fascinated by Eva's knowledge; and the seeming unbounded wealth of Eva's experience. Eva, for her part, was secretly flattered by Chickie's wistful admiration.

They became friends after Chickie's third visit. Eva was going off duty. They walked down the corridor together.

It was quite a mystery to several of the nurses—the relationship of this pretty, well-dressed girl, to the brown, gnarled old news dealer. Eva saw Julie's eyes light with joy the first time Chickie entered; saw the old woman hold fast to Chickie's hand, mumbling and pulling her down till Chickie kissed her lips.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

WHEN I sent for Ralph And, dropping everything he was doing, he came at once. It had been impossible to avoid contrasting his friendship with Jim's love.

Ralph's words gave me the strength and the sanity and, above all, the firmness to answer in all honesty:

"I shall never let myself forget that Jim is Jim and you are you. But you are the only man who would have reminded me that when I measure your friendship."

"I want you to believe that I'm right about Neal," Ralph broke in quickly—almost breathlessly. "I don't want you to give up hope and something like certainty."

"No, I won't do that," I assured him.

"But you never would have," Ralph protested in a puzzled voice. "I know you too well to think you needed me to bolster up your courage. You've always been so brave and unfaltering about Neal—that even if you thought him gone, you'd—carry on."

"Yes," I murmured, glad in my heart that he sensed something of the spirit that made me more than ever determined to pay Neal's debt, and to do it by myself without aid.

"Then it wasn't to discuss this you sent for me."

Ralph did not ask a question.

MARTHA LEE BY RADIO

By MARTHA LEE
Broadcast From Station WNAC, for WNAC American Woman's Club.

IN last Saturday's paper I told you a little about vegetable margarines and the discovery that Dr. Hawk, director of the Food Research Laboratory, Powder Point School, has made that vegetables margarines DO contain a goodly percentage of vitamines—those mysterious little things that we are told are so necessary for the proper upkeep of the human body.

We've always known that the vegetable margarines were economical, but I think many of you may have shared with me in the belief that they were not as nourishing in fats and vitamines as butter is. Now Dr. Hawk has proved beyond a shadow of a doubt—through careful experiments right in the Powder Point Laboratory, that vegetable margarine is just as digestible as butter, has just as high an energy value, and is equally as satisfactory a food from every feed standpoint as butter. Of course the fact that coconut oil margarine can be used with perfect safety for butter substitute does not mean that the cow will be replaced by the coconut.

Milk always has been and probably always will be the best food for man's general use, and there is no real substitute for milk—but it has been proved that those who for reasons of taste and economy wish to use vegetable margarine can do so without fear of any nutritional deficiency. I want to give you a few recipes that I know are good and in which margarine is used. They are simple, stir-and-bake recipes too—and we DO want to conserve on steps don't we.

Do you know, that wise statisticians tell us that in preparing breakfast a woman takes 445 steps, in preparing dinner 936 steps, in preparing dinner 964 steps, 2893 a day, 727,945 steps in a year. So any recipes that will save even a few steps are of real value aren't they? And I try to keep that always in mind when planning recipes for our club. Here's a recipe for that's a lot simpler than most recipes for sauce of this kind and delicious—especially good on asparagus.

One-half cup vegetable margarine, 2 eggs, ¼ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, parsley, ¼ cup boiling water, 1 tbsp lemon juice. Cream the vegetable margarine, add yolks of eggs slightly beaten, add salt, pepper, parsley, and gradually add the boiling water. Cook in a double boiler until thick. Remove from fire and add lemon juice drop by drop.

Here's one for a biscuit dough.

Biscuit Dough

Two cups flour, 3 tsps. baking powder, 2 tbsps. vegetable margarine, ¾ cups milk, ¼ tsp. salt. Mix and sift dry ingredients, work in margarine with fork, add milk slowly. Roll on floured bread board. The secret of good biscuits is to handle them just as little and as lightly as possible—have all ingredients ice cold, your oven good and hot and don't put your trimmings back into the dough—keep them by themselves and use them for "second beats."

Cherry Puffs

are a very popular dessert with my family and I hope you'll try this recipe.

One-quarter cup margarine, 2 tbsps. sugar, 2 cups pitted cherries, (fresh or canned), 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 2 tsps. baking powder, 2½ cups flour, ¾ tsp. salt. Cream margarine and sugar, add well beaten egg, then add flour, salt and baking powder which have been sifted together. Add the milk and last the cherries. This makes six individual portions or one large pudding. Bake in individual muffin tins or steam. Serve with hard sauce made with margarine.

One-half cup margarine, 2 cups confectioners sugar (sifted), 1 tsp. vanilla, ¼ tsp. lemon extract or fruit juice.

Chocolate Layer Cake

One cup sugar, ½ cup margarine, 2 eggs beaten separately, ½ cup milk, 1½ cups flour, 3 tsps. Baking powder, 2 squares melted chocolate, 1 tsp. vanilla. Cream margarine and sugar thoroughly. Add melted chocolate and cream again. Add well beaten egg yolks. Sift dry ingredients and alternately add to first mixture with milk, lastly add beaten whites of eggs. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Spread with white margarine icing.

Cream ½ cup margarine with 1½ cups confectioner's sugar, until light and creamy. Add a little milk or cream to make a consistency that will spread smoothly. Add flavoring as desired. Fruit juice may be used to thin icing in place of milk.

Lemon Meringue Pie

Pie crust: ½ cup margarine, 1¼ cups flour, ½ tsp. salt, 2-3 cup ice water. Cut margarine into the flour with a knife. Mix and sift flour and salt. Add cold water to form dough. Bake in moderate oven. As in making biscuits, be sure to have your ingredients ice cold, handle the dough as little as possible and bake in a hot oven.

Filling:

One cup sugar, 4 tbsps. flour, pinch of salt, 4 eggs, 1 cup boiling water, 2 tbsp. lemon juice, grated rind ½ lemon, 1 tbsp. melted margarine. Mix sugar, salt and flour. Add boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook until thick. Pour on egg yolks slightly beaten. Add lemon juice, margarine, and lemon rind. Cook over hot water until thick and creamy. Cool pour into pastry and cover with Meringue.

Meringue: Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, add a the sugar and continue beating until the mixture holds its shape. Then fold in 2 additional tbsps. sugar and flavor to taste. Spread over the pie and brown in a slow oven.

Fashion Fads

Alpaca attracts attention because of the variety of ways in which it is appearing. The latest novelties in silk alpaca show ribbed effects, not unlike ottoman silk.

Convenient costumes are assembled by combining a smart, colored silk overblouse with a white silk skirt. Unusually clever is the Roman stripe silk crepe blouse, when used with a white skirt.

Who Said It and Where

"The only jewel which will not decay is knowledge."

Knowledge is the surest possession. John Alfred Langford tells us in "Pralse of Books."

"The ruling passion conquers reason still."

A person's dominant vice sways his reason to assent to what is pleasant rather than to what is right. Pope justly remarks in his "Moral Essays."

You ought to know that vinegar is not just a sour taste.

Real vinegar has quality, flavor, aroma and delicacy, secured by the careful selection of the materials that go into it and by slow aging and mellowing.

Heinz Vinegars are real vinegars. Once you taste their flavor-compelling qualities you will never be content with the ordinary, crude, sour concoctions that have no name and no flavor.

It surely is not an extravagance to pay a fraction of a cent more to make a salad really delicious.

Marion Davies Achieves Her Greatest Film Triumph

Noted Film Star Is Declared to Be at Her Best in "Janice Meredith," a Remarkable Picture.

By LOUELLE O. PARSONS.

New York, August 6 (Universal).—If Paul Leicester Ford, the brilliant young novelist who wrote "Janice Meredith" some twenty years ago, had lived to see his heroine of Revolutionary days visualized by Marion Davies he would have had a feeling of supreme content.

He would have had the satisfaction to see Miss Davies create at the Cosmopolitan Theatre a Janice whose beauty is only matched by a performance of exceeding intelligence and understanding.

He would have known that all of Janice's girlish emotions, from her mischievous reading of sentimental novels to her carrying word to General Washington at Valley Forge, were inspired by Miss Davies' entire sympathy with this exceptional character.

Marion Davies is at her best as Janice. Further as I am with her work, and I think I have seen every picture she ever made, she astonished me by her versatility and by her ability to get across subtleties that would have fallen flat in less skilled hands. Certainly she has solved the art of pantomime.

In fact, the whole atmosphere at the Cosmopolitan Theatre lent itself to arousing a feeling of strong patriotism. Joseph Urban assisted by Charles Hein, transformed the house into a replica of colonial days that is very effective. I know that after seeing "Janice Meredith" I felt that I had seen the most enlightening picture on American history yet produced.

MARION DAVIES

Beautiful film star whose premier performance of "Janice Meredith," at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, New York, aroused a brilliant first night audience into a frenzy of patriotism over her marvelous portrayal of the heroine of Revolutionary days. The Cosmopolitan star is at her best in this, her latest picture.

Paul Revere's ride, a la Longfellow's description, is another moment that will make every red-blooded American sit on the edge of his chair, happy at this chance to see a detailed idea of what it meant for those brave men to win freedom for us.

EXCELLENT SUPPORT.

Others whose work is worthy of notice are Joseph Kilgour, as Washington; May Vokes, as the servant; Mrs. Arbuckle, as Martha Washington; Mildred Arden, as Tabitha; Helen Lee Worthing, as Mrs. Loring; Hattie Delaro, as Mrs. Meredith; Louis Stevenson, as Sir Frederick Mowbray; George Sollemann, as Colonel Ragh; Tyrone Power, as General Cornwallis; and Princess Marie de Bourbon as Marie Antoinette.

And after we live through the strenuous days of the Revolutionary War, the peaceful scene at the end, made in Mount Vernon, is most effective. Here we see Janice, her husband, her parents, General Washington and his wife, seated on the beautiful lawn facing the Potomac, peacefully surveying its quiet waters. A happy thought was to make this in colors—a scene of exceptional beauty.

"Janice Meredith" will be loved by every American who will feel it a pleasant duty to visit the Cosmopolitan Theatre and do homage to this great historical photoplay made so really by Marion Davies' sympathetic performance.

NOTABLES PRESENT.

Celebrity seekers had a glorious time elbowing each other for a glimpse of the throngs of famous folk who passed through the doors of the Cosmopolitan to attend the premiere.

Clicking cameras photographed men and women often seen in the society and rotogravure sections of the newspapers. As each beautifully gowned woman passed through the rose-twined lobby, some garrulous soul on the sidewalk identified her in an audible tone.

The same happened to the well known men who were instantly recognized by some member of the enormous mob gathered just outside the huge striped awning covering the walk in front of the theatre.

Police reserves were called to take care of those eager pushing souls who were lined up 100 deep on Columbus Circle saw the largest crowd assembled at Fifty-ninth street, since the island of Manhattan was bought from the Indians.

SCENE OF BEAUTY.

Inside the theatre there was a scene of great beauty. As the high white colonial gate, with its trellis of rambler roses, opened to admit those who were fortunate enough to possess the coveted pasteboard, there were many admiring comments on the gorgeous new decorations in the theatre.

The genuine Flemish tapestries that covered the wall, the beautiful bronze vases of the Colonial period, the hand-decorated walls and the valuable tapestries on the stage belonging to the William Randolph Hearst collection, all added to the brilliant scene.

The demand for tickets had been overwhelming. It was impossible to take care of all those who wanted to see "Janice Meredith." It seemed as if every literary, society and theatrical person of note had decided to motor in town for this event.

BRIGHTON FLAT IS LOOTED OF $1,300 GEMS

Police Investigatte Week-End Robbery Just Reported at Station 14

The apartment of E. C. Nickerson, No. 1815 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, was looted of jewels and clothing said by the police to be valued at $1,300.

Although the robbery, which is thought by the police to have been the work of automobile thieves, was committed between Friday and Sunday no report of the break was made to the police until today.

The break was discovered by the Nickerson family on their return from their summer home. The police of Division 14, Brighton, who are making the investigation, declared today that they believe one of the parties responsible for the robbery was a Boston man who was sentenced for a jail term this week on a similar charge.

BOUNDARY BILL TO BE SENT IN THIS WEEK

England Expects the Northern Government to Pick Commissioner in Short While

Belfast, Aug. 6.—The special correspondent of the Belfast News Letter learns that at the conference at the Vice-Regal Lodge in Dublin, the British Colonial Secretary, J. H. Thomas, took command of the situation and stated finally the limits to which the British Government was prepared to go in order to meet the Free State's demand for immediate action on the Irish boundary question. The correspondent continues:

"My informant says the bill will be introduced this week to establish the boundary commission, but it will not be put down for the second reading until after the recess.

"If the position of Mr. Cosgrave (head of the Free State government) becomes desperate, parliament will be called together at Westminster earlier than was intended with a view to passing the bill. Meanwhile negotiations will be continued with the northern government, and strong efforts made to induce it to appoint a commissioner.

"Mr. Thomas went so far as to express confidence that those efforts would be successful, and Mr. Cosgrave agreed to accept postponement on those conditions.

UNITED STATES WORLD'S BOSS, SAYS TROTZKY

Moscow, Aug. 6 (Universal Cable).—In the fiercest attack he has yet made against "American Imperialism," as typified in the Hughes-Coolidge-Dawes intervention in European affairs, Leon Trotsky bid Russia to be ready for the greatest catastrophe in history.

He contends that America is meddling in European affairs and that means the ultimate reduction of European countries to the state of vassals similar to the Balkans and an inevitable world war.

Trotsky said:

"The United States today bosses the capitalistic world. American capital seeks absolute dominion over the entire planet. American imperialism, under the pretense of pacifying Europe, apportions economic zones and markets and regulates European banks and trust companies and industries over night.

"In 1920 America definitely entered the path of world-robbery when that trans-Atlantic imperialism tried to put Europe on rations. All the imperialistic steps that America takes are under the pretext of pacifism and freedom of the seas, and all that sort of thing.

"Aside from the underlying idea of robbery and economic holdup and behind all of America's might is her realization of being the boss.

"When Americans talk politics they speak thusly: 'I told Pomeare——', and 'I connected Mussolini,' and 'I suggested to Lord Curzon,' showing they feel that they are the bosses of Europe."

CURLEY CANNOT ATTEND DAVIS NOTIFICATION

Bentley of the Clarksburg, West Virginia, Chamber of Commerce that he will be unable to attend the ceremonies attending the notification by the Democratic party to John W. Davis, that he is the party's candidate for President.

"Congratulations are due the Boston American," says Commissioner Glynn in his official indorsement, "for its humane spirit in conceiving such a campaign of education. Its I PLAY SAFE CLUB pledge is an inspiration to every citizen. If carried out this pledge will act as an insurance to every person who assumes the risk of the highway whether in automobiles or on foot.

"In this important arm of the municipal service—the Boston Fire Department—where the paramount duties are the protection of life and property, reckless driving cannot and will not be tolerated, for it must be borne in mind that the public has as much right to the road as fire apparatus.

INSISTS ON SAFETY.

"It is our aim and duty so far as lies in our power to arrest all fires in the incipient stage. Early responses is the underlying principle and the success of all fire departments. However, in order to insure the public the protection so essential in fire emergency, the Boston Fire Department recommends such speed as is consistent with safety.

"In sections of the city where the stress of traffic is to be considered, we insist on speed consistent only with the utmost care and safety.

"It is difficult to establish a speed limit to meet all conditions, but the officer in charge of apparatus must at all times use his best judgment. Our officers and men have been instructed in general orders to have in mind, at all times, the safety of the public as well as the safety of the men of our fire-fighting force.

"All the operators of motor apparatus in the Boston fire department, or any like department, might well concelder joining this splendid movement and keep before them constantly the sterling pledge of the I PLAY SAFE CLUB.

NEEDS CO-OPERATION.

"Only the co-operation of all can bring about results so far as protection of life and limb is concerned on our highways. Much good is bound to come from such a humane organization as the I PLAY SAFE CLUB, and I therefore heartily indorse and recommend the Boston American's I PLAY SAFE CLUB and request enrollment in same as a member."

Proof that the hearts of members of Boston fire department are in the right place so far as the safety campaign is concerned was shown by an enrollment petition signed by twenty-two of their number.

INTERESTS RULE U. S. LIBRARIES

Charge to Be Probed by A. F. of L.; Censorship Laid to the Carnegie Foundation

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 6.—A censorship of the American people's reading matter "by predatory interests" through control of public libraries by private foundations all over the country was charged today by the librarians' union in a report to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

The charge was levelled primarily at the Carnegie Foundation. An immediate investigation of the charge was ordered by the council. Chief points of the Librarians' Union charge follow:

CHARGES BY UNION.

1—That Carnegie Libraries are not controlled by municipalities in which they exist and to which they have been given.

2—That such libraries are controlled by boards of trustees in no sense responsible to the people, but appointed generally by the foundations themselves, or with their approval.

3—Such control under the terms of the Carnegie contracts is perpetual.

4—Public moneys appropriated by cities and States pass out of the control of the givers immediately upon their donation and are administered by the foundations or their trustees.

CALL IT CENSORSHIP.

5—That there is rapidly coming into being a system under which only books approved in a certain manner may be placed on foundation library shelves, and that amounts to censorship and is so intended.

ELIZABETH JORDAN'S EYE RISKED IN CRASH

Northampton, Aug. 6.—The condition of Elizabeth Jordan, the New York author, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident at Hadley, was reported as much improved today. Miss Jordan, with her mother, Mrs. William Jordan, and her sister, Mrs. Edward Beyer, all of New York, who make their summer home in this city, were injured when their car collided with a truck. Miss Jordan was cut on the temple and narrowly escaped losing the sight of her left eye, but it was said today that her sight would be saved.

PATROLMAN CHISHOLM SHOT BY ACCIDENT

Patrolman Kenneth Chisholm of the Metropolitan Park police, a noted life saver, was accidentally shot today when his pistol fell from its holster. Patrolman Chisholm, who lives on Flint street, Somerville, was running for a trolley car at Allston and Cross streets, Somerville, when the weapon dropped. The bullet entered Chisholm's left shoulder, inflicting a flesh wound. He was given first aid by Dr. Carvell and sent home.

70 WOMEN START ON AUTO TOUR FOR JACKSON

"The Women's Tour for Women," composed of seventy women workers for James Jackson, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, left Boston today for a State tour in autos. The start was made from the State House. Mrs. Henry Preston White, chairman of the Jackson women's campaign committee, was in charge. There were women speakers, musicians and chauffeurs. Mrs. Jackson, wife of the candidate, is taking an active part in the campaign.

Repeal of Dry Law Is Demanded in Newfoundland

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 6.—Repeal of the Newfoundland prohibition law was moved in the Legislature by Premier Munroe, who introduced a bill permitting the sale of alcoholic beverages under definite restrictions.

The proposed regulations are based on the laws for government control of liquor traffic now in force in Quebec with modifications made necessary by local conditions.

BOGUS $10 BILL PRESS SEIZED BY RAIDERS

Providence, Aug. 6.—A printing plant, including a platen press, in which it is believed approximately 150,000 in counterfeit $10 notes on the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston recently were printed for distribution in New England and New York city, was seized in a barn at Harrisville, R. I., by United States secret service operatives.

The secret service men are positive the plant was connected with the band of 19 alleged counterfeiters arrested here ten days ago in simultaneous raids conducted in the Latin quarters of the city by secret service men from all parts of the United States.

The seizure of the plant is taken here as the culmination of an investigation conducted in Rhode Island by the secret service for the past four months under the direction of Joe Palma, chief of the Secret Service Bureau in New York city.

Claims Fortune in Edinburgh Passed Up by Father and Grandfather

Why his grandfather and father passed up a chance to claim the $100,000 estate left by his great-grandfather, is a mystery to Robert Neal, Boston Elevated employee, of No. 137 Elm street, Stoneham.

But Neal has taken steps that none can say the same of him. Acting on the tip of an Edinburgh attorney, three years ago, he put in a claim for the fortune.

Now he has received information leading him to believe he will come into possession of the fortune within another month.

The great-grandfather died in Edinburgh without leaving a will. Legally the estate went to the eldest son of each generation, but neither claimed it.

Neal insists he will continue working, however, even after he gains the fortune. He says he wouldn't know what to do with his time if he didn't.

BIKE BOYS GO AFTER RECORDS AT NEW BEACH SAUCER

TWIN BILL ON CARD FOR FANS

A 4-cornered, 40-mile motor-paced race and a two-heat tandem match will feature the cycling program at the Revere track this evening.

Probably the outstanding contest will develop in the paced event. The entrants are Clarence Carman, Henri Wynsdau, Frankie Keenan, Charley Verkyn and Henri Fossier.

Carman, the veteran of many a hard fought contest, is now the rider of the hour with the Revere fans, while Wynsdau has reached top form. The Belgian, next to George Chapman, has scored more victories than any other rider this year.

Frankie Keenan has been racing on New York and Newark tracks the past few weeks and last Wednesday was the winner of the Newark Gold en Wheel.

It will be the first appearance in more than two weeks of Charley Verkyn. Fossier, the Parisian, is also riding in the form that won for him his European honors.

Another feature of tonight's card is the three-heat tandem match between the McKenzie brothers and Stockholm and Reeber. This pair finished so close in last week's race that there was some doubt among the judges as to which team won.

PETER MANNING TO RACE OVER COUNTRY

Memphis, Aug. 6.—Peter Manning, 1,564¾, the fastest trotting horse in history, is being groomed by Edward F. Geers is also training his record-breaking pony pacer, Sanardo, 1:59¾, for the coming campaign.

With Peter Manning, Geers experts to establish new trotting records on both the mile and half-mile tracks.

Y., Aug. 6.—Lefty Thormahlen, the leading hurler of the Albany Eastern league baseball club and reputed to be one of the best southpaws in the league, has left the club and is now believed to be playing with the Shercrooke, Quebec, semi-pro club. Thormahlen jumped to the Shercrooke team last year, but was reinstated. This season he has won 12 games and lost eight.

Berlenbach-"Hambone" Sign Up for Battle

By JACK CONWAY

PAUL BERLENBACH and Hambone Kelly, two of the hardest hitting middleweights in the world, have been matched to meet in a ten-round bout at Braves Field on Friday evening, August 15. It should develop into the best punching battle between middleweights since the famous battles between Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke. Ketchel knocked Papke out twice, while the latter scored with one knockout.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. was obliged to meet Berlenbach's demands for a $10,000 guarantee to land this match. Dan Hickey, Berlenbach's pilot, pointed out that Paul the Paralyzer is risking a great deal in meeting Hambone as he is booked to mingle with Young Stribling in New York on August 27. Tex Rickard has guaranteed Berlenbach $15,000 for the Stribling bout. He will be knocked out of this big money if Hambone should tip him over with one of his vicious left hand smashes.

BERLENBACH has been the big star in New York rings during the past year. He has made a fortune for himself as well as for the promoters for whom he has boxed. Paul the Paralyzer knocked out twenty-four opponents in a row which is a remarkable feat for any boxer. Berlenbach was formerly a wrestler. He is one of the few mat men who have made good in the boxing game.

IT will be Hambone's first start since he knocked out Wolf Larsen at Mechanics Building. Kelly incidentally is the only boxer to ever stop Larsen in Boston.

The South Boston youth is a one punch fighter. He drops the opposition with a single wallop. When in condition, he rates with the best men in his ring division. As Hambone has been training at Brynt-ville on Cape Cod, he should be able to show all of his hitting power when he faces the colorful Berlenbach. He will need to be at his best as Berlenbach wants to knock over the South Boston puncher.

GEORGE (KID) LEE, New England lightweight champion, is on a vacation at a New Jersey resort. Lee has been one of the most active campaigners in New England during the past year and is entitled to a layoff. Manager Johnny Buckley says Lee will return to Worcester in a couple of weeks and that he will then be ready to step in and topple over the stiffest kind of opposition. Lee has filed claim with the New York Boxing Commission for an opportunity to show in the elimination series at which an opponent will be selected to tackle Benny Leonard.

MICKEY WALKER, world's welterweight champion, will do his training for his bout with Benny Leonard, lightweight king, at Summit, N. J. Walker has been doing light work since he defeated Lew Tendler in Philadelphia on the Leonard match was originally planned for this month. When Mickey and Benny start swapping blows at the Yankee Stadium on the evening of August 29, it is expected that 70,000 persons will be on hand to witness festivities.

MANCHESTER, N. H., promoters are negotiating for a bout between Jack Sharkey, latest heavyweight sensation, and Eddie Record. It is planned to stage this match at an outdoor show the latter part of this month.

Genaro Whips Curtin

New York, Aug. 6.—Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, scored an easy victory over Irish Johnny Curtin of Jersey City in a twelve-round bout in Brooklyn last night.

Mike Ballerine, Bayonne, outpointed Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., in the semi-finals.

Big Bam Now Three Homers Behind 1921 Record

Detroit, Aug. 6.—Babe Ruth hit his 35th home run of the season in the game with Detroit today.

The Sultan of Swat is fast nearing his 1921 record. Today he is only three behind his record, and judging by his consistency of his circuit hitting, it will be only a few days before he ties his mark.

Ruth now has 49 games to hit 23 home runs in order to reach the total of 69 needed to shatter his present record of 59 homers.

'HANK' GOWDY HONORED BY ARMY

Honors, the like of which were never accorded any other major league player, were heaped on Hank Gowdy today. The big catcher of the Giants stood at home plate in company with Generals Wallen, Bullar and Weigel and reviewed a platoon of regular infantry from the 15th Regiment pass in review to remind the "big fellow" that he had been honored by the War Department in having the athletic cannon at Fort Bennings, Ga., named after him.

They took this way of telling him about it. The stands were full. General Welles, commander of the Infantry School at Fort Bennings, read to the throng the War Department creating Gowdy Field and then handed the scroll to Hank as the proudest souvenir the big, awkward ballplayer ever collected.

As the little group at the plate broke ranks, Hank shaking the general as though they had been buddies all their lives, a messenger slipped him a telegram. Hank read it: "Members of the United States Infantry Association throughout the country watch with great interest the events of Gowdy Day in New York today. We invite you to attend the dedication of Gowdy Field early in the Fall.

"Charles A. Farnsworth, major-general, chief of infantry, United States Army."

ROBSON'S PUNCH IS MENACE TO ROBINSON

George Robinson, Cambridge, who has tamed more knockout punchers than any man in the ring today, faces another terrific puncher when he tackles Tommy Robson of Malden at the Boston Arena, next Monday night at the Commercial A. C. show.

Jack Delaney couldn't make an impression on the Cambridge boxer and his wicked punching failed to stop Robinson.

Robson, who has not been seen in a Hub ring since he defeated Mike Gibbons is punching harder than ever today and for this reason he is looking forward to stopping Robinson before the limit is reached.

Sailors of the Atlantic fleet now stationed at the Charlestown Navy Yard will turn out to witness the battle between Young Dencio and Jose Javier, two Filipino flyweights, whose thrilling fights in the navy championship tournament proved thrilling.

Wolf Larsen and Pat McCarthy will top the card with Spike Hennessey and Walter Lee also on the card.

COOMBS READY TO PLAY FOR YANKS

New York, Aug. 6.—Earl Combs will rejoin the Yanks when they return from the West. The ankle which he broke in a game at Cleveland is almost well. He believes that he will be able to take his place in center field by the end of the month. In the meantime, like the bus driver who takes a bus ride on his day off, Earl visits the Polo Grounds daily and studies the National League variety of bone.

ENGLISH HORSEMAN ARRIVES FOR RACES

Saratoga, Aug. 5.—Making his first visit to America, George Blackwell, noted English trainer of thoroughbreds, arrived at Saratoga and will be the guest of the Hon. John Sanford, master of Hurricane Stud, for the greater part of the meeting.

HOPPE - CUTLER SIGN FOR CUE TITLE MATCH

By J. L. DAFTER.

Two balkline billiard champions have been signed up for a match at three cushions, the first time anything of the sort has happened in the history of the green cloth game.

William F. Hoppe, world champion, will meet Albert G. Cutler, American junior champion, in a match of 150 points, to be played in three blocks of fifty points each.

They will clash on the 11th and 12th of this month at Hoppe's Billiard Academy, and on the 12th at the Fourteenth Street Academy.

Hoppe has been preparing all Summer for his three-cushion match next Fall with August Kieckhefer and has been displaying rare form at the angle game. The world champion balkliner claims the record of 25 at three cushions, made several years ago in an exhibition match in San Francisco.

But, according to William A. Rosenbaum, proprietor of the Fourteenth Street Academy, Hoppe isn't going to have any walk-away with Cutler.

The latter, too, has been leaning toward the three cushion game for a long while and has been putting in some hard practice licks. He is playing daily at the Fourteenth Street Academy.

LEONARD CALLS OFF BOUT WITH MORAN

New York, Aug. 6.—Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, has called off the lightweight champion's bout with Pal Moran at Detroit on next Monday night.

This action resulted when Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the Leonard-Walker match, protested against Benny entering a ring before the Walker contest.

ERMINIO SPALLA TO FIGHT MARTIN BURKE

Newark, N. J., Aug. 6.—Erminio Spalla, heavyweight champion of Europe, and Martin Burke of New Orleans, are matched for a 12-round no decision bout at Paterson, N. J., on August 21.

BIG SHAKEUP IN BRAVES TO MARK BANCROFT'S RETURN

NO FIGHT LEFT IN OLDCLUB

MANAGER DAVE BANCROFT returned to his sorrowful Braves today, and after he looks the boys over in a game or two, he will undoubtedly decide that some further operations are necessary on the club before it becomes normal.

Banny may not be able to get in the game for a month or so, but it's a cinch he could be wheeled out to the platter in a hospital chair and hit better than most of the regulars.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

ZOROASTER stands out — a great name — in the mists of antiquity as the first of the religious leaders and prophets who have served the destinies of mankind.

More ancient than Buddha, Confucius or that other Chinese sage, Laotze, who founded Taoism, Zoroaster, or Zarathustra—as his name is spelled in the ancient Irano-Persian—lived and taught about 600 B. C., before the Battle of Troy was fought. Some believe that he was contemporary with Moses, in fact many of his followers confine him with Moses.

For twenty years, as the story runs, Zoroaster dwelt in the wilderness, absorbing wisdom through solitude. The legend explains that during this time he submitted entirely on a single cheese that never grew stale.

Tradition has it that Zoroaster came down from the mountain when the twenty years were over, with two great ambitions: to teach the Persians all of the truth regarding this life and the next and to die in a thunderstorm.

Both of these ambitions, we are told, were realized, for Zoroaster won over part of the Persian tribes, called the Zend-Avesta, and gave the Persians their national religion when he died in a thunderstorm.

In all this jumble of myth and legend, a few undoubted facts stand out. It is fairly well established that a prophet named Zoroaster did live and that he taught the Magi, or Wise Men, of Persia. These of the many Wise Men of the East, followers of Zoroaster, were hundred hundreds of years later by their gentle wisdom to follow the star that led to the stable where lay the Bethlehem Babe and express their adoration of the Baby Jesus.

Zoroaster taught religion that was at least one step removed from idolatry. He believed that there are just two gods, a good one named Ormuzd, the Supreme Judge, and an evil sheolic fiend Ahriman. Light belongs to the good, darkness to the evil god. It is wise according to Zoroaster, to worship the good, hence his followers are sometimes mistakenly called sun-worshippers or fire-worshippers.

The hereafter, according to Zoroaster, depends on our record in this life. After we die our souls pass over the accountant's bridge. If it is found that we have more good than evil deeds to our credit, we go straight to eternal bliss. If our evil deeds are in the preponderance, our destination is pain, while a land of shadow is the fate of those whose records show evenly balanced good and evil, there to await the final decree of the Great Judge.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner

A YOUNG housewife, very much interested in the well-being of her family during the Summer months, sent in her August menu for approval.

Fish, served in a variety of attractive ways, supplanted meat in many of her dinners, or heavy meals.

"As you will notice," she writes, "I am eliminating meat as much as possible from the diet during the hot month."

Dr. Mahoney

She might as well have kept the meat on her meal schedule. The protein content is practically the same in fish and meat. One professes almost as much fuel for the body as the other.

You really don't need much of either during the rest of the hot season. Then and most are both valuable articles of diet, but you wouldn't think of stoking up your furnace in the heat of August, nor would you load yourself up with heat-producing foods.

This is the season of fresh vegetables and fruit and it is our chance to let up on the heavy Winter diet and refresh the system with the green things with which Nature has provided us.

As long as the vegetable foods are cleanly they are thoroughly healthful. Care should be taken, however, that they are clean, because the soil from which they came may be far from free of bacteria. Handling in the market places, where the shopkeeper counts the vegetables and makes change continuously without washing his hands, may also load up the foods with dangerous bacteria.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Is there any cure for "pernicious anaemia," Mrs. M. Norfolk.

I am sorry to say that this disease is most always incurable. The person will lose color and the number of corpuscles diminishes all the time and the patient has not a sufficient amount of blood to live long after. The transfusion of blood sometimes has good results for a time.

What is the cause of frequent headaches, pains in the eyes and sometimes almost a numb feeling in the neck. MISS M. O'C., Somerville.

It may be that the condition of your desk is causing your frequent headaches. Light which is the most desirable for clerical work should come over the shoulder. On the other hand, you may have some disease of the eye. I should advise you to see a specialist on eye troubles and have him make a thorough examination of your eyes.

Bicycle for Errands
Helping Hand Editor:

I have always wanted a bicycle, but haven't the money and was wondering whether any reader could provide me with one. I am 13 years old. If I had a bike could get lots of errands during vacation. I have some books I am willing to give to any one who would like them. They are very interesting, particularly for a boy around 12. WARREN, Stoneham.

We hope you get a bicycle, Warren. We will keep your kind offer on file regarding the books and feel sure that some boy will be glad to get them.

Glad to Return Help
Helping Hand Editor:

At last I can return in a very small way the help that has so generously given to me. I have a baby's crib, a good sized one, on rubber-tired wheels, suitable for a baby two years old, that I would love to give to any one who needs it. There is a small pad and cotton mattress with it. Unfortunately I can't afford to send it.

MRS. F. N. P.

Thank you. We are asking Mrs. N. B. to call for the crib.

Thanks Expressed

AHOY MERMAIDS THE BIG SWIM'S ON AUGUST 16

Heigh-ho mermaids!

Here are the glad tidings you've been anxiously awaiting.

The annual water carnival of the Boston American will be conducted in Charles River Basin, Back Bay, Saturday afternoon, Aug. 16.

It will be the biggest carnival ever conducted by this newspaper with the best girl and women swimmers of New England participating.

A. S. CHAMPIONSHIP, 1000.

For the first time since the American has been conducting these carnivals, a national championship event has been arranged as one of the features of this season's program. This will be the national senior half-mile championship, free style. The girl who wins will be crowned half mile champion of the United States.

A. A. U. medals emblematic of the championship of the United States will be awarded to the girls finishing first, second and third. Additional prizes will be presented the next twelve swimmers who finish. It is expected that entries will be received from all parts of the country for the national half mile. Those desiring to compete in it must fill out a special blank that may be had upon request. As in the case of all national A. A. U. events there is a special entrance fee of $1 in this event.

NO ENTRANCE FEE.

There is no entrance fee in the other events which include 440 yards (quarter mile), 100 yards handicap, 50 yards handicap, 50 yards for girls under 14 years, and fancy diving from ten-foot board. In the last named five dives will be necessary, of these front, back and front jackknife will be required. The other two will be optional. Four prizes will be awarded in each of these events.

Among the early entries are those of Miss Rena MacDonald of Readville and Miss Corrine Dasey of Dorchester.

The Boston American's meet is sanctioned by the N. E. A. A. U., whose officials will co-operate in making it a success. It is open only to registered athletes. The purpose of this is to protect the amateur standing of all swimmers who enter.

Only residents of New England will be permitted to swim in the quarter mile and the fifty-yards events. Every contestant must be registered and those who have not already done so should at once communicate with Frank Facey, No. 35 Prospect street, Cambridge. Entries will close at 3 p. m. next Monday.

FEATURE SWIM SHORTER.

Until this season the mile open has been the feature event of the American's carnival, but as this newspaper desires to do its utmost to foster swimming, the Water Carnival Editor decided girls would prefer to swim a half-mile or quarter-mile, so these events were substituted.

It is believed some of the best swimmers in the country will enter these two events. A special souvenir medal is to be presented every girl who finishes in the quarter mile.

Every convenience is to be arranged. There will be dressing tents in a roped off area, physicians, nurses and matrons and as many husky lifeguards as are needed to patrol the course. Many of the latter will be Boston American guards who are now helping save lives at Greater Boston beaches.

WILL PRESENT O'NEILL PLAYS IN PROVINCETOWN

Provincetown, Aug. 6.—Provincetowners will have the opportunity this season of seeing the premiere of a cycle of plays by Eugene O'Neil, under the title "SS. Glencairn," produced by the Barnstormers, Frank Shay, director. There will be performances August 14, 15, 16, 18 and 19, with a matinee on Saturday, the 16th.

The cycle includes: Part I, "The Moon of the Caribbees: Part II, "In the Zone: Part III, "Bound East for Cardiff:" Part IV, "The Long Voyage Home."

August 20 and 21 the Barnstormers will present Remo Bugano's pantomime "The Sign of the Rose."

8,100 PERSONS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

New York, Aug. 6.—Figures made public by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce indicate that in the first six months of the year, 8,100 persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents throughout the country.

These figures were obtained by that body in connection with a campaign against automobile accidents due to reckless driving. Reports from 217 newspapers throughout the country show that in many places where the automobile fatalities previously had been reported as high, there has been considerable reduction during June as compared with the preceding month.

Among the cities from which reports of a decrease were received were Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Philadelphia and this city, the organization announced.

The announcement explained that in the reports from the 217 newspapers it was revealed that 693 persons were killed in June, in the cities in which these papers are published and that a total of 2,318 persons were reported to have been killed in the first six months of the year.

The newspapers are in cities of more than 100,000 in population and the reports include motor vehicle fatalities in suburban communities.

The total toll of 8,100 deaths for the entire country was estimated on these reports.

TELLS MANY HOW TO OBSERVE DEFENCE DAY

Cities and towns of New England are making extensive preparations to observe National Defense Day, September 12, Colonel C. R. Gondo at army headquarters, South Boston who has charge of giving information about the correct way of observing the occasion, has received more than a hundred letters asking for particulars. Lieutenant-Colonel W. C. Nutter, depot quartermaster, is marshalling industrial concerns for participation in the day.

RAILWAY WORKERS ENDORSE LA FOLLETTE

walk in." If he does, he will owe a good deal to the Democratic convention in New York. La Follette also will owe much to that Democratic convention. An army of Democrats will refuse to vote the Democratic ticket this year because they resent what they consider narrow religious discrimination shown in the convention. Of Democrats that will refuse to vote the Democratic ticket, many will vote for La Follette to keep their political record free of any Republican taint.

THE LEARNED Vice-Chancellor of New Jersey, John Bentley, decides that dogs mustn't bark between 8 p. m. and 9 a. m. Honor him for that decision. Is there any reason why one man should keep a dog to keep a dozen other men awake?

WAYNE WHEELER, enthusiastic prohibitionist, assails the "beer policy" of labor. It isn't that working men oppose prohibition more than others. They don't. Increased savings bank deposits belong largely to working men.

What workers object to, is the fact that prohibition really means prohibition for them, but does not mean prohibition for the prosperous class.

BONUS BUREAU AIDS VETERANS ON PROBLEMS

There isn't a reason in the world why veterans of the World War should be unable to make out their adjusted compensation application.

The questions that trouble are easily answered by the American-Advertiser's Soldiers' Friend Bureau at this office.

It isn't even necessary for the busy ex-soldier to make a personal visit, although veteran visitors are always welcome.

Just pen a few lines, drop them into the nearest mail box, and Uncle Sam will see that they are delivered to the staff of experts at the Soldiers' Friend Bureau conducted by the American and Advertiser.

A letter will serve you as well as a call, and will result in obtaining just as complete advice as would a visit.

Here are a few of the letters and answers:

R. H. N., Springfield.

Q.—Is Service on a transport will be counted in computing service entitling to a credit of $1.25 a day for each service? F. J. B.

Q.—I enlisted July 5, 1917, went overseas the following September and was discharged January 21, 1919. How much am I entitled to and what is my total amount of compensation?

A.—Your credit will be at the rate of $1.00 a day for home service, after the first 60 days, and $1.25 a day for overseas service. This sum when multiplied by 20, will give you the approximate face value of the 20-year paid-up insurance certificate which you may receive. MEDBURY SAYS

By John P. Medbury

WHILE dice are against the law in most cities, there are still thousands of students who are learning their arithmetic lessons in alleys.

THEY study their arithmetical problems from ivory books.

IT doesn't take a smart boy long to learn that four and three make seven.

WHY let your folks spend hundreds of dollars on your education when you can take fifty cents and learn all there is to know about numbers.

SOME boys are so bright at arithmetic that they can tell a "seven" two blocks away.

THEY know that if it isn't a seven it somebody has been fooling with their dice.

CRAP shooting is also very healthy. It strengthens the wrists and hardens the knees.

THE only trouble about the game is that it gets your trousers out of shape.

STILL, some guys carry a valet around with them.

THEY get their pants pressed every time they make a seven.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

The heroic band of mountain climbers who waged a gallant fight to scale the summits of Mount Everest found that the native porters who could withstand the greatest hardships and battle their way to the greatest heights were not the big husky specimens, but the little, wiry fellows. Curiously, several readers have drawn this record to my attention and suggested that I write a column about the superiority of little men—physically. I hesitate to do so for some big fellows can hit very hard.

* * *

Instead of writing about little men, it will be safer to write a series of little paragraphs. Perhaps one or two of them may be found to have a "punch."

The first half of them are addressed to workers:

Work hard today and you needn't fear tomorrow.

If you don't get pleasure from your work you will not get it from your pay envelope.

Sweating exudes poison from the body but enriches mind and pocket.

Air castles must have foundations—in you; or they never become realities.

Keep your head and it will keep you.

Victories that come without having had to be fought and won are nothing to brag about.

Discharge your responsibilities and you won't be discharged.

The failures of today sometimes are the successes of tomorrow. Go to it.

The world owes you a living—only, most have to hustle to collect it.

Soft jobs usually end in hard luck.

Spend little effort and you will have little else to spend.

Seek weightier responsibilities, but first fit yourself to carry them.

If you think you are working very hard the chances are you are not. The hardest workers don't look upon work as hard.

Be interested in the "how" of your job and the "how much" will take care of itself.

The following are meant mainly for employers and executives:

The prudent employer doesn't broadcast all the time. He often puts the receiver to his ears.

Being given a rolltop desk doesn't make you a top-notcher.

Persistence overcomes sales resistance.

The wise boss sees much and overlooks still more.

Success simply imposes greater responsibilities.

The far-sighted manager is not busying himself with today activities; he is planning tomorrow's, next month's, next year's.

For the executive: See things to do—and train others to do them. For the employe: See things to do—and do them.

He is successful who inspires others.

The best pickers of men don't have to keep continually picking them.

Some big men pride themselves on their ability to select men, some bigger men on their ability to make men.

It is more important to make a permanent friend for your concern than a transient sale.

The boss whose workers are always giving him a fit isn't fit to be a boss.

STOCKS STEADY AND QUIET IN NEW YORK

Stocks were steady and quiet in Wall Street trading.

Irregular price movements continued, mostly the continuation of the profit-taking selling which started on a large scale in the last two hours of trading Tuesday.

Special weakness was also apparent in some sections of the list when Presser Car Steel as a result of passing of the preferred as well as the common dividend, sold down 2½ points to a new low and Atlantic Refining, on rumors of a possible reduction in dividend next Monday, lost nearly 3 points.

GOOD TEXTILE OUTLOOK.

Congoleum jumped 2¾ and sales around that level were very large. American Radiator was another strong spot, going into a new high price level.

Industrial news prior to the market opening was of the same constructive character as in the last few weeks, with more reports of higher rate of industrial operations.

The textile industry was prominent in this respect. Some of the large steel mills reported doing double turn operations as compared with single-turn schedules a week or so ago.

WATER WORKS UP.

American Radiator, National Dairy Products, United States Distributing and American Hide & Leather were some of the stocks which received major speculative attention, and prices as a rule were higher.

American Water Works sold 3 points higher on official denial that the control of the company had been wrested from the present management.

Railroad and oil stocks received very little attention. The rails were steady but rumors of pending reductions of crude oil prices in mid-continent following those of the Penna district announced Tuesday made the oil stocks and prices were generally lower.

Coal company stocks were in demand both on the stock exchange and the outside markets with Philadelphia & Reading coal leading the activity on the big board.

In trading on the Boston Stock Exchange, the market was dull and prices changed mostly narrow. Among issues fractionally higher were American Telephone, American Woolen pfd., Boston & Maine, Calumet & Arizona and United Shoe. Ventura and New Haven were slightly shaded.

NEW GAMBLE IS UNDER WAY

An inevitable consequence of the prospect of settlement in Europe has been the revival of speculation in German mark bonds, the quotations of which have advanced sharply during the last few sessions on the theory that they are not so nearly entirely worthless as had been thought.

The freshly developed demand has extended to the German war loans as well as to pre-war obligations, a typical instance of the advance being the rise of the Prussian 3½ per cent. consuls, issued in 1878, which were reported yesterday at $4,625 per million mark piece, compared with $2,000 on Saturday and $550 a few weeks ago.

The movement parallels the spurt of rubles a month or so ago and its violence is accepted as reflecting the extent to which the gambling instinct figures in its growth.

LIVERMORE IS SEEN AS BIG WINNER

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Jesse Livermore, former Boston market wizard, is reported in State Street circles to be a big winner in the Chicago markets.

Jesse Livermore.

Several weeks ago, before the spectacular advances in grain got under way, Mr. Livermore was said to have deserted Wall Street temporarily for the richer pastures he saw in the mid-West.

There was some comment at the time on his action, but adverse criticism quickly ceased as the rise in grain prices got underway.

The truth is that no one knows exactly what Mr. Livermore is doing aside from the "market wizard" himself, though the fact that turned his attention to Chicago has been pretty generally understood.

The influence of the improved agricultural situation upon conditions in the West was indicated yesterday in the announcement by Carl J. Peterson, State Bank Commissioner in Kansas, that seven Kansas banks, in the hands of receivers, will reopen this month.

The commissioner said that the reopening is due to the large returns from this year's crops, which will repair the State's economic structure and put the institutions on a solid footing.

Plan of reorganization of the Atlantic Coast Company, which owns a fleet of twenty-two wooden schooners and two shipyards in Maine, has been mapped out.

Creditors will sell their claims, aggregating $1,334,549, to a new company, the New England Maritime Co., at 16c on the dollar. The new company will sell $300,000 8 per cent. preferred stock and issue 60,000 shares of no par common stock.

Holders of the $3,000,000 stock of the old company will be offered an opportunity to purchase the issue of preferred stock, which has been 75 per cent. underwritten.

Reorganization is an aftermath of the post-war collapse of the shipping boom. In 1920 Atlantic Coast stock was on a $10 dividend basis and sold as high as 135.

IMPROVEMENT IN DEMAND FOR COPPER

There is a well-defined improvement today both in the tone of the market and in the demand for copper.

Fresh interest is manifest among buyers and has led to moderate transactions for both domestic and export account up to 13⅜ cents delivered basis.

Export demand has also increased on strong cable advices from abroad. The f. a. s. New York price is 13¼@13⅜ cents. Conditions abroad have exerted a direct influence upon the market here due to the favorable reports from London indicating an Inter-Allied agreement.

American consumption shows an actual increase lately, with the Connecticut Valley brass mills operating on a more satisfactory basis. Consumers are more anxious to replace depleted supplies, and the immediate prospects would seem to be for a firm market.

If the drastic curtailment plans are fully carried out at the Cerro de Pasco mines there is every prospect of a further gradual strengthening of the statistical position.

Foreign Demand for Financial Experts

As international debts have multiplied, a new job—that of financial adviser to foreign governments—has been developed for American economists and banking experts.

The idea of the export of experts is not new. Persian masons centuries ago taught Arabs to build the arch; England in medieval times gave Europe textile mills; France sent us the X-ray, and we showed the world how to control yellow fever.

But the borrowing of financial brains is a later development. More and more in recent years debtor nations seek the help of competent and impartial advisers from abroad, especially advisers from money-lending lands.

The effort of General Dawes and his staff to solve the reparations riddle is a familiar achievement. And now comes the League of Nations, borrowing American brains to help Hungary as it is aiding Austria. When W. P. G. Harding, of Federal Reserve Board fame, found he could not accept the league's offer, it turned to Jeremiah Smith, Jr., a Boston lawyer and financial expert. First with the A. E. F. and then with our commission to Negotiate Peace—as counsel to the United States Treasury Department—Mr. Smith goes to his new job with an inside knowledge of Europe's money tangle.

In many other lands American experts are on duty helping local governments to collect taxes and pay bills. But this choice of our experts is no measure of our popularity abroad. Nor should we accept it as a tribute to our superior ability or integrity. There are other reasons—probably more weighty—why so many Yankees now hold fiscal jobs under foreign governments.

TREASURY COULD PAY 105 FOR LIBERTYS

Prevailing high levels for Liberty bonds, now selling around the highest prices of the year, are expected to cause an indefinite suspension of the Treasury's sinking fund operations. Although required to keep the average cost of sinking fund purchases down to par and accrued interest, the government could pay as much as 105 for Liberty bonds in view of the large blocks acquired in previous years below par.

Banker Sees Flow of American Investors' Money to Germany

Predicts Necessity Will Overcome Prejudice Here Against Foreign Investments

"The weight of necessity will overcome American investors' prejudice against foreign investments."

This was the statement made yesterday by one of the keenest American students of international finance, an executive of one of the largest banks in the country who will leave shortly for an extensive investigation trip through Europe and particularly Germany. The subject under discussion was whether the general acceptance of the Dawes plan will really open the way for more extensive participation by Americans in German investment by propositions than mere participation in the coming gold loan.

The banker was of the opinion that the amount of American money to be placed in Germany and elsewhere in Europe following the German loan will be a surprise to those who believe Americans will not absorb foreign securities in substantial amounts.

"Many of our so-called foremost bankers are still in the dark so far as foreign investments are concerned. Their knowledge of foreign conditions is pitiably small. They are the real laggards in the effort to place America in the forefront of the ranks of truly world-banker nations. But even these bankers will be forced to recognize the opportunities for investment abroad. The banks of this country are flooded with money which they find difficult to employ. The nation's banking resources are daily expanding. In my opinion, the United States cannot utilize all of the money which is available here. The banks, however, must keep their funds employed.

"With the United States affording no opportunities for the profitable use of their money, our banks will of necessity be forced to seek safe propositions abroad. They will find many good investments. Take my own bank. Heretofore we have gone very little into foreign propositions and we have been most cautious. Next month I leave for a trip abroad, while over there I shall make a most thorough investigation. The trip may result in this bank going in for greater participation in foreign investments. The same thing is true of the great majority of our financial institutions.

"Of course, several of our big banks were severely burned a few years back in their investments in South America and contiguous territory. They offered losses through the unwarranted amounts of money placed in those countries. There is danger of some banks doing the same in Europe, but they have the South American lesson as a warning.

"The opportunities for American investments in Germany will be such during the next few years that the great barrier of prejudice now preventing such investments will be dissipated and a free flow of American money will enter that country to help in its rehabilitation and stabilization.

"With the outlook for a continuation of cheap money in the United States, our investors will not be satisfied with the low returns on investments. They will seek higher returns and in this way gradually recognize the high yields obtainable on German securities. This will lead the way for more extensive investments."

BETTER BUYING OF HARDWARE

New York, Aug. 6—Hardware Age, in its weekly market summary, will say tomorrow:

"More vigorous buying is reported in most of the wholesale hardware centres. A number of small but important price reductions have been made and the effect has stimulated buying in most places. Coupled with this, the healthy condition of crops and the report of earnings by the United States Steel Corporation have buttressed confidence throughout the general market.

"Retailers are reported to be ordering futures more liberally than they have since early Spring. Their orders are numerous, but are for the most part small.

"Early estimates by hardware jobbers indicate that July sales will show a substantial gain over those of June. Collections are better, deliveries are satisfactory and the general tone of the market seems to have been stabilized."

BUSINESS WRECKS OF JULY ARE REDUCED

There were 1533 failures with liabilities of 49,182,380 reported to Bradstreet's for July a decrease in number of 1.7 per cent. from June, but an increase of 9 per cent. over July last year. Liabilities for July were 29 per cent. in excess of June and were 22 per cent. larger than July last year.

THE LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Today's story is about Chicopee, but only because the work going forward among the boys and girls of Chicopee is typical of a movement as broad and as long as New England.

Boys' and girls' clubs and their work in the garden help to create farmers, cut down doctors' bills, furnish vegetables for the family and are raising up an army of good citizens.

"Weed Destroyers" and "Jolly Jar Fillers" Now, but Minute Men and Women of the Future

ONE week from today, the Not-a-Weeds and the Weed Destroyers will be piling into the gymnasium of Chicopee High School for their annual rally.

Close behind, or possibly a step or two ahead, will be the Jolly Jar Fillers and the Winter Providers.

It will be a big day in Chicopee.

The Not-a-Weeds and the Weed Destroyers are boy members of the city's garden clubs.

The Jolly Jar Fillers and the Winter Providers are two of Chicopee's five canning clubs for girls.

The rally marks the close of a season of activity in garden and canning-kitchen; it is the day when honor-rolls are read and blue ribbons are distributed.

Child's play? Unimportant? Of no moment?

That may be a matter of opinion; consider the FACTS.

There are 480 boys in the garden clubs of Chicopee, which last year raised crops valued at $5,976.84.

This year they will do at least as well.

The girls in the five canning clubs number only 197 and the mark THEY are shooting at is the $6,314.19 record hung up by their predecessors in the clubs of 1923. Miss Dyer tells them they are going to better it, and inasmuch as Miss Dyer is the local supervisor of club activities, the inspiration of the movement, the good friend of every boy and girl in Chicopee and Holyoke, the girls of the canning clubs are bubbling over with confidence.

In Chicopee, Mr. Average Citizen will tell you that these boy and girl clubs are the best in the State, maybe the best in New England, possibly the best in America. The Mayor is proud of them. Every adult citizen shares his pride.

The visitor is surprised to find in Chicopee this sort of interest in matters agricultural, for the reason that Chicopee's fame is chiefly industrial. Here is the enormous plant of one of the world's largest rubber factories: here are great cotton mills; here is the factory of one of the country's largest makers of sporting goods.

Even in the early days, Chicopee was no great shakes as a farming center. "The soil," one of the first historians wrote, "is mostly of little value for tillage purposes."

The truth may be, and undoubtedly is, that Chicopee's interest is first of all in her future citizens, the children.

That interest is found today everywhere in Massachusetts, everywhere in New England.

The fact is that there are boys' and girls' clubs like Chicopee's in nearly every city and town in Massachusetts, nearly 300 of them. They have a combined membership of approximately 50,000. They flourish in the cities and they thrive in the towns. An Arlington boy, living on the very edge of Boston, is this year's poultry-raising champion of the State.

The work of these 300 clubs is carried on under the direction of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, at Amherst. It was begun eleven years ago. The State club leader, a member of the college faculty, is Mr. George L. Farley.

"It would be difficult," Mr. Farley says, "to estimate the cash value of this year's product of the boys' and girls' clubs, but you have the figures for Chicopee and you know that there are similar clubs in 300 communities. The figures will pass the million-mark.

"That would justify the work, to the average New Englander, as one well worth while, but in my opinion the movement is of tremendously more value in its resultant good to our young people.

"It makes for good citizenship, and there never has been a time when that was more important.

"It makes for better homes. Any home is much more a home, a much more attractive home, for a back-yard garden in which father, mother and the children are equally interested.

"The clubs are a tremendous impetus to our boys and girls to get along with the work of education. As they learn more and more concerning the business of the world they become ambitious to go further. By way of illustration, I was immensely gratified last year, on the occasion of a visit to the State Normal School in Framingham, to discover that a great number of our prospective teachers were formerly with us in this work of the State College."

Mr. Farley has been the State leader of club work among the boys and girls for the past eight years. Year by year the clubs are growing in numbers, in membership, in the cash value of their products and in local interest.

Massachusetts Agricultural College works through county organizations, in the case of Chicopee through the Hampden County Improvement League. The county organization is directly in touch with the work in towns and cities.

The success of the work in Chicopee has been due, in great part, to the whole-hearted support of the school department. It has been in progress ever since the United States entered the World War, growing year by year. The city pays the school teachers who act as supervisor and local leaders in the Fairview, Willimansett, Aldenville, Chicopee Falls and Chicopee Center districts, and places certain schoolhouses at the disposal of the canning clubs.

Miss Ethel T. Dyer of Holyoke, principal of two schools in the Fairview section of Chicopee, has had supervisory charge of the club work for six years. Miss Dyer's work begins in the Spring, when she makes a house-to-house tour of the city and talks with every ambitious young gardener with any land at his disposal. Everybody, then, is an aspirant for the county championship, and a glorious free week in Amherst as the guest of Massachusetts Agricultural College. The State requirement is that each young gardener must have at least 500 square feet of "farm." The children are also required to keep a business record of their achievements and failures.

The college sends along printed matter, likely to be of help to the young gardeners, and at least once a year Mr. Farley or one of his associates comes in person to give a helpful talk.

The youngest Chicopee gardener is 10 and the eldest 15 years old. They raise beans, corn, potatoes, cucumbers, lettuce, radishes, beets, peas, pumpkins and tomatoes.

Last year, Chicopee walked away with the garden championship of Hampden County, the honor of going to Amherst for Farmers' Week falling to David White. Not to be outdone, the girls of Chicopee produced the county's champion canner, Edna Goodhind.

One of the most noticeable features of the work in Chicopee has been the constantly increasing interest of the parents. An outstanding case is that of little Miss Elmira La Chappelle, of the Aldenville section.

Elmira has done so remarkably well as one of the Jolly Jar Fillers—each club bears a name selected by the children themselves—that her admiring father has built a canning kitchen for her in the basement of the house and has equipped it with an up-to-the-minute steam-pressure boiler.

From time to time Miss Dyer issues "Chicopee Club News," acting as editor, reporter and printer. Here are three items from recent issues of this publication:

"We are very proud of Edna Goodhind and David White. Edna belongs to the Fairview Club and won the canning championship last year. David lives in Willimansett and won the garden championship. For their rewards they spent the last week of July at the Agricultural College with the champions of the other Massachusetts counties.

"Arthur Cungliffe is eleven years old. He joined the Poultry Club last November. Arthur's standing is first in the Chicopee Poultry Club and fourth in the county at large. This is a splendid record for a first-year poultry boy.

"Professor Cole, from the Agricultural College, will give a demonstration of jam and jelly making in the Chapin School canning kitchen next Wednesday at 2:30. Advanced canners cannot afford to miss this opportunity if they intend to make jam and jelly. Please invite your mother and her friends."

More than 9,000 jars of jam, jelly, marmalade, preserves and pickles the girls of Chicopee have put up this year, much of it for homes where mother is so busy with younger children that otherwise they might be without a single jar.

Having children to work with, instead of adult canners and gardeners, Miss Dyer and her six associates are careful to mix work with play. Their first and last thought is to keep up the interest. And so there are regular meetings, each conducted according to parliamentary rules. Each club has its own song, its own motto.

This year Miss Dyer has encouraged her young canners to buy from her young gardeners, and in "Chicopee Club News" it is duly reported that "Maurice La Fountain, Chicopee Falls, sold 1,000 tomato plants, at $1.25 per hundred."

Is this club work among the boys and girls worth while?

Chicopee says very much so. The officials of the Agricultural College say there can be no doubt about it.

Instances are related—but not in Chicopee, these—of 12-year-old boys who have been considered so unruly in school and so incorrigible at home that their guardians were contemplating sending them to correctional institutions. Two or three weeks in his own garden has saved many such a lad.

"Let a boy like this become interested in a garden," one authority declares, "and he is almost certain to find himself. Not only that, but the REAL boy speedily is revealed to his friends.

"Through the work of these clubs the individual learns to observe more closely. He learns something of the value of labor. His views are broadened by contact with others.

"Collectively, the children learn the value of organized effort, of co-operation; the social instinct is developed.

"The influence of this work upon the community, upon the parent as well as upon the child, is inestimable. It is much easier to imagine than measure the economic, intellectual and moral values that pass over from the adult to the rising generation when neighbors and friends join with the children in some praiseworthy work."

The regular season of gardeners and canners at Chicopee comes to an end next Wednesday, as has been said, with a monster rally.

There will be one hour in the open air—sack races, volley ball, a 50-yard dash and other sports.

Then there will be an indoor meeting, with inspirational talks by Miss Helen E. Doane and Mr. Otis E. Hall, representing the Hampden County Improvement League. Cheer contests, song contests, chorus singing, a playlet and the reading of the honor rolls will be followed by a half-hour with a magician. The day, and the farmers' and canners' year, will close with the award of blue ribbons.

Chicopee and its boys' and girls' clubs are named only because they are typical of a great work that is going forward in every State of New England.

In the State at large, nearly 300 cities and towns co-operating with the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Fifty thousand boys and girls, bright boys, good girls, being led along the paths which lead to Good Citizenship.

Chicopee's club membership is large, 677, being practically one-tenth of the school enrollment.

But, even in Chicopee there are children who would be greatly helped by membership in these clubs.

How is it in your town or city?

Has your "Bill" a garden? Is Mary a member of the canning club?

Wouldn't you like them to be? If you are all agreed about it the thing to do is drop a line to your superintendent of schools. He can find a way. The service is waiting, free of cost, except the salaries of the supervisor and teachers, for any community that wants it.
